Legislature Starts Work After 'Love Feast'

DAVEY HONEYS HOUSE, SENATE WITH A DINNER

Poulson Sounds Harmony Plea as Lawmakers Get Ready to Work on 30 Bills.

27 PERTAIN TO RELIEF

Governor Asks Bill Starting Job Insurance Benefits First of Next Year.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Feted at a "love feast" dinner by Gov. Martin L. Davey, members of the 92nd general assembly, in special session, had for their consideration today 30 bills, most of which concerned Ohio's controversial relief question.

The governor was host last night to more than 200 persons, including legislators, state officials, members of his administration and newspapermen, and the toastmaster, Democratic State Chairman Francis W. Poulson, closed with these words:

"With all the love and affection expressed here, I don't see how the newly convened session of the legislature can fail to be other than harmonious."

Bills Hold Answer.

The bills introduced at the opening session yesterday apparently held the answer.

Twenty-seven of them concerned relief, either calling for the program sponsored by Governor Davey or that approved by the Ohio League of Municipalities.

Two bills provided creation of a three-member state building commission and a revenue source for a state welfare building program, and the remaining measure would appropriate approximately $139,200 to finance a session that has prospects of enduring until next spring.

Both houses adjourned until 1:30 p. m. today after introduction of the bills and house Democrats, in closed caucus, shortly afterward nominated Rep. Bishop Kilpatrick (D., Trumbull) as speaker pro tem and floor leader.

Wins 53 to 37.

Kilpatrick, criticized for alleged sympathies toward the Committee for Industrial Organization, was selected over A. Lee Fair of Holmes county by a 53 to 37 vote for the post left vacant by Jacob E. Davis of Pike county, who resigned to become a common pleas judge.

The governor sent a special message widening the authority of the assembly to consider the creation of a building commission and to amend the state unemployment insurance act so benefit payments may begin next Jan. 1 instead of Jan. 1, 1939.

Richland Representative Loses In Race For Floor Leader.

Richland county's representative in the state legislature, Ralph C. Lutz, was unsuccessful in his campaign for election as Democratic floor leader in the house yesterday. Representative Bishop Kilpatrick, Trumbull county, was selected at a party caucus and was to be officially confirmed today.

Lutz, according to Associated Press dispatches, was eliminated after he had polled 10 votes on the second ballot. Edmund D. Doyle, Hamilton county, who was not mentioned as a possibility for the post yesterday, polled 18 votes on the third ballot, and was thereafter eliminated.

CITY SKIDS AS SNOW FREEZES

Streets Glazed With Ice—Mercury Falls to 15 Above Zero.

With Mansfield streets glazed with ice, motorists and pedestrians alike found the going dangerous last night and dozens of minor collisions occurred at street intersections.

The ice formed after a light snow covered the city. The snow was followed by a sharp drop in the mercury which had failed to rise above 25 degrees at noon today. Last night's low was 15 above zero, only four above the low season's low of 11 recorded last week.

The weather will continue fair and cold tonight with the possibilities of snow flurries Wednesday, the forecast said.

HUNT SPREADS FOR PAIR WHO ROBBED STORES

Police Check Similar Hold-ups In Northern Ohio Cities In Search For Clues.

TAKE MONEY, CIGARETS

Bandits Use Same Methods In Four Robberies, Escape In Sedan Each Time.

Search for two gunmen who staged two holdups in quick succession here Thanksgiving eve spread to several northern Ohio cities today as Mansfield police ran down meager clues.

Police Chief Meade K Bates said today that detectives had made several trips into other cities where holdups under identical circumstances had occurred.

While police were in Akron Saturday investigating activities of the pair in that vicinity, two robberies were reported within 50 miles of Mansfield.

Hold Up 11 In 2 Stores.

At 2:15 p. m. two men entered an Atlantic and Pacific Tea company store at Fremont, held up six persons and escaped with $90 and 30 cartons of cigarets.

Two hours later, the same pair, driving a Ford V8 sedan with New York license plates, held up a Kroger Baking and Grocery store in Fostoria and rifled two cash registers of nearly $100 while five persons were held at bay.

Chief Bates said he was reasonably sure who the gunmen were. He believes the bandits [illegible] from Detroit or Toledo and that they had several sets of license plates for their car.

Sedan Used Here.

The auto used in the holdups of two A. and P. stores here was reported as a black V8 sedan bearing Michigan license plates.

At 50 Park avenue west the gunman held up seven persons and took $100 and 36 cartons of cigarets as well as two chickens and a duck. Less than 30 minutes later, the same pair, with drawn guns, entered another A. & P. store at 544 Springmill street, herded six persons into a back room and looted the cash drawer of $41 and carried off 25 cartons of cigarets.

ACCEPTS BID

Michigan State to Play In Florida Orange Bowl.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Jack Baldwin, Orange Bowl committee schedule chairman, said today Michigan State college had accepted an invitation to play in the sixth annual New Year day football game here.

Baldwin declined to say which southern teams were being considered to oppose Michigan State.

Coach Charley Bachman of Michigan State telephoned Jack Bell, Miami Daily News sports editor, from Seattle, Wash, that the Spartans were ready to play any opponent the committee might select.

Michigan State lost only one game this season, a 3-0 upset decision to Manhattan.

Costs Him $84 an Ounce for Selling Liquor To State Men

Eighty-four dollars an ounce is a pretty stiff price to pay for liquor, Charles Carcione, 286 North Main street, admitted in city jail today.

But it cost him about that much to sell six ounces of liquor to state agents. Pleading guilty before Acting Municipal Judge Stuart H. Cramer to a charge of selling it without a permit, Carcione was fined $500 and costs. Unable to pay the fine, he was to be taken to county jail today to serve it out.

"And there'll be no suspension of the fine," Cramer warned.

State agents produced a six-ounce bottle of liquor in court, which they said they purchased from Carcione Nov. 19. Also in their possession was a quart bottle, half full of whisky, which was confiscated when they raided his restaurant yesterday, their testimony said.

Carcione admitted the sale of the six ounces of legal whisky to one of the state agents, but denied that the bottle found on the premises yesterday was his.

The agents testified that the bottle was discovered behind a loose board in a shack just outside of the rear door of the restaurant. They said it was on the Carcione premises.

The restaurant owner denied any knowledge of the bottle, explaining that he "didn't know what his neighbors did."

Santa's Modern Fellow Has Toy Pack Reflects Times

Old Gent Hasn't Been Napping Since Last Visit, Trip To Toylands at City's Stores Reveals.

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

Santa Claus hasn't been caught napping by the swiftly moving times and his pack this Christmas will carry a collection of toys that reflect the latest scientific and mechanical developments.

A visit to the toylands of Mansfield stores, all of which are stocked with the best collection of toys in recent years, will quicken the heart of a youngster and hold, as well, the interest of Dad and Mother.

This is going to be a streamlined Christmas, at least so far as toys are concerned, store managers predict, and a trip through toy departments carries convincing evidence that they are right.

Animated Toys Popular.

Conspicuous among the Mansfield toylands are the large number of animated toys and reproductions of popular radio and comic strip characters which most youngsters accept as actual beings and a part of their evening's entertainment.

For instance, there's a Charlie McCarthy, 21 inches tall and with his silk top hat and dress suit, in the H. L. Reed company toy department. The toy Charlie looks remarkably like Edgar Bergen's chattering companion, too. He even has a movable mouth and his customary monocle.

Then the little girls are going to find a lot of joy in the latest of Dy-dee dolls, so nearly human that they need the atention of a

ESTATE VALUED AT $525,000

Estimates Filed on Property of Bishop Brown; Court Names Appraisers.

(News-Journal Special)

BUCYRUS—The estate of the late Rev. William Montgomery Brown of Galion, unfrocked Episcopal bishop, was estimated to be worth $525,000 at a brief hearing before Probate Judge Constance Keller here yesterday.

The estimate of the estate included $110,000 in personal property remaining in trust in the Mary S. Bradford estate. She was the mother of Mrs. Brown, also deceased.

The real estate valuation was $400,000. Almost all of the real estate is in Cleveland. The annual income on the property is $15,000.

Judge Keller appointed three Galion and three Cleveland appraisers, who have 18 months in which to report on the estate. They are J. Lew Gugler, F. W. Biehl and F. E. Cook, all of Galion, and R. F. Fulmer, John F. Kennedy and Charles H. Chamberlain, all of Cleveland.

Edward Bushnell, Cleveland, and Clara B Manzer, Galion, were named executors. Miss Manzer was the bishop's secretary.

The hearing on the will, which sets up a fund for promotion of communism after all bequests are paid, was attended by Attorney Eugene Parker of a Cleveland law firm representing the Communist party. It was because of his writings on communism that Bishop Brown was convicted of heresy in a church trial.

Cow Barn On Paying Basis Now

PURE AIR, Mo.—(AP)—Lester Bozarth has milked more profits from his "modernized" cow barn than he ever got from old bossy.

Bozarth got rid of the cows and turned the old red barn into a dance hall. The loft became the orchestra dais, a hot dog stand took the place of the horse stall.

Rural gallants needn't worry about going to the dance with stubbly chins either—the corn crib has been converted into a barber shop.

SWIFT ACTION SEEN ON NEW HOUSING PLAN

Congress, Bent on Helping Business, Hurries Program For Early Vote.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Members of congress, obviously eager to do something to help business, went to work so swiftly today on President Roosevelt's program to encourage home construction that they may enact it at the special session.

While both house and senate argued leisurely over crop control legislation, committees in both chambers started consideration of the chief executive's recommendations for liberalizing the housing act.

Stewart McDonald, housing administrator, was asked to explain the proposal to the house banking committee.

Democratic Leader Barkley of the senate predicted the bill would be out of committee in a week, and said it was entirely possible the bill would pass at the special session.

A similar view was expressed by Democratic Leader Rayburn of the house.

"I can't imagine any real controversy," Barkley said. "No government money is involved. The bill might go through the senate in a single day."

Despite Barkley's forecast, Senator Glass (D-Va), senior member of the banking committee, announced his opposition.

"I am utterly opposed to the government going into business," Glass said.

Most comment in the president's housing message was favorable, however, although some legislators advised against expecting too much from the program.

Mr Roosevelt proposed broad modifications of the housing act to encourage investment of private capital in construction of private homes.

Nipponese Seek to Cut Off China's Retreat From Nanking Defenses.

SHANGHAI—(AP)—Japanese naval forces today seized the American-owned steam tug Feiting, hauled down its American flag and threw it into the Whangpoo river.

They also seized two tugs flying Italian flags.

It was the first time the Japanese had touched an American flag, although they had bombed points flying that flag.

Seized at Wharf.

The American vessel was seized at the Kinleeyuan wharf in the French concession. The Japanese removed from the bridgehouse a sign indicating its American ownership, struck members of the Chinese crew with the sign, and steamed downstream.

It was understood that United States Consul General C. E. Gauss registered a strong protest with Japanese authorities after which he made a formal report to the state department in Washington.

It was understood that the Italian embassy also protested to the Japanese authorities who promised an investigation.

The Japanese towed the Italian and American tugs past the United States cruiser Augusta and the Italian warship Monte Cuccolo without incident.

The American tug was the property of the William Hunt interests which were understood to be among the largest American [illegible] United States officials regarded the tug legitimate American property.

Japanese forces meantime were reported moving toward the Yangtse river from Kwangteh in an effort to cut off the Chinese retreat from Nanking to Hankow, the new capital.

Open Defensive Drive.

Foreign military experts reported the Chinese defense boom at Kiangyin, 80 miles northwest of Shanghai, had been opened and that Japanese warships and lighter transports were moving up the Yangtse toward Nanking. It was believed the Japanese vessels would get up the river as far as Chiangkiang, about 40 miles east of the evacuated capital, where it was believed a new Chinese boom had been completed.

The Japanese have smashed their way to within about 75

Truce Fails, Wife Jailed For Hitting Mate With Poker

A domestic truce, drawn up for a Bellville family late yesterday in the court of Probate Judge C. J. Anderson, proved short-lived as the wife was lodged in the county jail last night on a charge of striking her husband with a stove poker.

Cited first for neglecting her three small children, the wife and mother, Mrs. Lela Winbigler, 35, agreed to return home with her family after a hearing before Judge Anderson.

A few hours later Mrs. Winbigler was in the hands of the law again when a domestic argument assumed serious proportions and she was charged by her husband, Encil, with attacking him with the metal poker. At a hearing before Justice of Peace Vance C. Stuller at Bellville, she pleaded guilty and was bound over to the grand jury under $100 bond.

Unable to obtain bond, she was still in jail today. She is charged with assault and battery. The three children, David, 11; Ruth, 8, and Mary, 2, are being cared for by Bellville relatives.

WASHING KNIT SUIT

Before attempting to wash a knitted suit or sweater, test a sample of the wool in lukewarm water for four minutes to see that the color does not run. If you have no sample, select a part of the garment which is inconspicuous and test that. Don't worry if the water is only slightly discolored. If the color runs you will have to work fast in the washing.

Next pin a sheet to a firm pad and lay your garment on the sheet, tracing out an accurate outline of the garment to be washed.

Launder knitted garment in soapy, lukewarm water, squeezing very gently, and then rise in lukewarm water three or four times.

'Safeguarding Mental Health' Topic of Little Flower Club

Prevention of mental diseases was the point of emphasis in the review of the book "Safeguarding Mental Health," by Rev. Fr. R. C. McCarthy which was given at the meeting of the Little Flower Study club yesterday. Mrs. F. W. Gillig reviewed the book at the home of Mrs. F. B. Maloney, 403 Sherman place, who was hostess to the group.

In her discussion Mrs. Gillig pointed out that living conditions have improved since the Civil war to such an extent that man's life has increased from 40 to 60 years, but the conditions of today—especially the noise—are such great factors to encourage the prevalence of nervous disorders.

"One out of every 26 born today," she stated, "will be afflicted." Many nervous disorders of adult life have their inceptions in childhood. Encouraging self-control and unselfishness in a child is an important method of regulating mental health.

At this point Mrs. Gillig gave several rules for mental health. Among them she included, don't get discouraged, but profit by failure; don't make excuses, but make good; remember the pleasant and forget the unpleasant occurrences; live in today, forget yesterday, and don't worry about what may happen tomorrow; idleness is more dangerous to our mental health than overwork.

The author of the book advises that everyone, even if he has absolutely nothing to do, should have a hobby. Worry, he indicated, is the greatest harm to the human race.

The next meeting will be a Christmas party and gift exchange at the home of Mrs. James Ehalt, 67 Brinkerhoff avenue. At this meeting, Dec. 13, canned goods for the Christmas baskets will be collected.

"Sharp black" dresses are the popular types for present wear. The quiet type of black that is not noticeable is quite missing from present collections.

Recent Bride Honored At Wedding Shower

Miss Lucille Mowers was hostess last night for a wedding shower given in honor of Mrs. Robert Smith, the former Helen Maglott. A dainty color scheme of pink and white was caried out in the decorations, and a tiny bride centered the refreshment table.

Cootie was played during the evening. For the presentation of the gifts a pink decorated umbrella was erected and the gifts were arranged beneath it. The hostess gave Mrs. Smith a coffee table.

SANTA'S PACK REVEALS TREND

Old Gent Hasn't Been Napping Since Last Visit, Trip to Toylands Shows.

"mother." The dollies, made of soft rubber, have natural colored skin and might serve to give the little owner an early start in the care of a family.

The dollies "wet" their diapers after being fed from a bottle of water, and they do just about everything the human baby does except cry. Some of the cradles they sleep in are modern, too. They have tiny electric lights at the head to enable the "mother" to attend to her dollie in the dark

In the big toyland at Kobacker's the boy will find the electric train he has always wanted. The Lionel models, with the latest in railroad developments, start with the pressing of a button and speed around the track, whistling at stations and stopping without the help of the dispatcher.

Steam Engines, Too.

Boys will like the newest in steam engines, too—the kind that runs from a light plug. Water in the boiler is heated by electricity, saving the danger of an explosion from alcohol, or damaged rugs.

There are miniature motion picture projectors in most of the toy departments which show movies of favorite radio and comic page notables, and then the boy who likes action will find Tommy guns that sound like the real machine guns and spit red flames. There are toy soldiers who beat marching rhythms on their drums, and mechanical Popeyes who do nosedives and tailspins in airplanes.

All the toy shops—at Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Penney's, Kobackers and others—this season feature educational toys, designed to help the child of preschool age to learn the alphabet and to do things for himself. For the tiny boy or girl there are block sets that are put together in combinations reuiring thought and concentration Other sets are for more advanced children.

The city's toy shops are larger this Chistmas as well as more modern. Predicting the biggest business in seven years, store managers are arranging for the annual visits of Santa Claus on Saturdays before Christmas, and most of the stores have letter boxes where kiddies may deposit their Santa Claus mail.

At Sears, Roebuck and company, Santa Claus will entertain children and hear their requests each Saturday until Christmas between the hours of 2 and 5 and 7 and 9 p. m.

Aunt Patsy, the Dy-dee doll nurse, will visit the Reed store Friday afternoon to demonstrate the dolls and show young "mothers" what the dollies need to keep them contented.

The J. C. Penney store, stocked with a whole carload of toys, is beginning the holiday season earlier than last year. The stock, valued at $4,000, is larger than in previous years.

The Montgomery Ward toyland, the largest ever shown by this company in Mansfield, has been modernized with the opening of the firm's new store. One of the features of the display is a dial typewriter on which ambitious young stenographer or newsman can learn the keyboard and actually type letters.

"Toy City" at the Quality Furniture company is packed with hundreds of playthings ranging from "Betsy Wetsy" dolls that drink and "wet" their diapers to Lionel streamlined trains that are operated by eletricity.

Toy department workers, and maybe Santa Claus too—are a little puzzled about the reception some of the newest toys are receiving For instance, they find that many boys still prefer the locomotives with a smokestack to the streamlined engines that look like beetles And—this is a good sign, the storekeepers think—boys are losing interest in the "gangster" weapons and turning to the educational toys and those requiring skill to operate.

Another worry that afflicts the toyshop manager about this time of the year is the curious boy who wants to test the toy he has requested from Santa Claus. It's "hands off" until Christmas in the toylands, but the ruling, as usual, is difficult to enforce, storemen say.

Selby Rates Wojciechowicz, Davis as Best Purdue Faced This Fall.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

A VISITOR over the holiday week-end, Bob Selby, who finished his football career at Purdue this fall, regards Alex Wojciechowicz, Fordham center, and Corby Davis, Indiana backfield star, as the outstanding ball players the Boilermakers faced this year. But Selby believes Cecil Isbell, a teammate, also rates All-America mention. . . . This is the week that the nation returns to normalcy. Except for a few skirmishes in the south and the climatic bowl affairs on New Year's day, the season is concluded. Basketball takes over the stage immediately . . . with the Tygers opening with Akron Kenmore on the home court this Friday. . . . The Associated Press All-America — considered official in many books—will be released Saturday. Watch for it. . . . Tickets for The News-Journal football banquet for the Mansfield high eleven will go on sale within a few days. Watch for the announcement of places where they may be purchased. "Pete" Henry, or "Fats", as they also call him, will be the principal speaker, you know. He was one of the greatest of them all. A swell speaker, too, we understand. . . . Perhaps some mention of what will hoppen to Mansfield baseball players will be made at the minor league meeting in Milwaukee this week. All will be transferred—and if the Red Sox return next summer, a new bunch of players will be sent here. The old favorites deserve a chance in higher company.

Sure Shots For All-America Berths?

THE MAJORITY of All-America backfields this year will consist of Whizzer White of Colorado, Clint Frank of Yale, Marshall Goldberg of Pitt and Joe Kilgrow of Alabama. Wait and see. . . . Damages caused by the gallery following the unfinished Montague-Ruth golf match a couple of week-ends ago cost the New York club $4,000. . . . The only ball games Galion lost this fall were dropped to teams coached by the Query twins, Bill of Shelby and Dave of Willard. . . . The tip is that the new director of athletics at Cincinnati university formerly headed such a department at a Big Ten school. It couldn't be "Doc" Spears, now at Toledo, could it? . . . Sid Gillman, cocaptain of the 1933 team, is slated to return to Ohio State as an assistant coach. . . . Bob Beach's final high school ratings in the Ohio State Journal list Mansfield in seventh place, below Massillon, Youngstown East, Canton McKinley, New Philadelphia, Warren and Bellaire, rated in that order. Columbus West, Portsmouth, Sandusky, Steubenville, Campbell Memorial, Toledo Scott, Hamilton, Cleveland John Adams, Fremont Ross, Fostoria, Middletown, Wellston and Coshocton follow Mansfield in that order.

Billy Weidner New Mat Champion.

TO KEEP you up on the champions: Billy Weidner, who has made many appearances here, is the new light-heavyweight mat king. He succeeds the Great Mephisto, also seen here in the past. . . . Adolph Worthy and Bob Curtis, a couple of former Mansfield Relays stars, Cleveland sophomores at Ohio State, are ineligible. . . . Look for Oscar Vitt, new Cleveland pilot, to receive the Sporting News' "outstanding minor league manager of 1937" trophy this year. . . . Columbus papers continue to refer to Tom Henrich, the youthful Yankee star, as a Mansfield boy. Massillon deserves the honor. . . . The Striblings, Pa. Ma and Babby, are in the automobile business in Mississippi. . . . Jimmy Braddock is thinking seriously about going into the restaurant business on Broadway.

Plans to Enforce Boycott on Schmeling.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi league announced today it would enforce its boycott against Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, in all his American fights unless he agrees not to take his earnings back to Germany.

Samuel Untermeyer, league president, made the announcement in reply to a letter from Mike Jacobs, who has a promotional monopoly on Schmeling's fights in this country. Jacobs sought to have the boycott removed for the German's fight against Harry Thomas here Dec. 13, on the grounds it had been booked to condition him for the Joe Louis bout and not to earn money.

ONTARIO FACES TOUGH TEST IN INAUGURAL FRIDAY NIGHT

Defending Champions Meet Twice-Victorious Lucas Quintet In County Game On Home Floor.

By CHARLES MARTIN

ONTARIO'S defending championship Richland county basketball league combine faces its initial test of the season Friday night when it opens the 1937-38 schedule against the undefeated Lucas club at Springfield high as the circuit swings into its first full week of play.

While the Ontarioans are battling Lucas, Madison high's Rams invade Bellville for their inaugural melee with the Bellville cagers, and Union (formerly Weller) travels to Butler.

The sharpshooting Lucas cagers have already registered two league triumphs and will be gunning to remain in the unbeaten list. Lucas beat Lexington and Union in the two league tilts played to date.

Encounter Big Joe.

Coach Orville Kibler's athletes big assignment Friday night will be to throttle the invaders' brilliant offensive stars, John Crawford and Tom Greulich, the latter a transfer from John John Marshall of Cleveland.

Kibler is busy this week moulding together and outfit around two veterans from last year's crack aggregation. They are Matt Hager and Dick Casad. His big job will be to replace such stars as Bob Bogantz, Howard Patterson, Bob Elliott and Nick Zeigler.

With three veterans returning from Madison's runner-up cage machine of last season, Coach Al Fendrich is attempting to replace Kenny Lockhart and Ed Harmon, lost through graduation. Should he be able to develop two newcomers capable of handling the posts vacated, the Rams are expected to figure prominantly in the league race.

The lettermen back to form the nucleus for the 1937-38 combine are Capt. Gene Harmon, Bill Wilkins and Joe Miller.

Meets Butler Five.

Union faces a tough assignment in Butler, which looms as one of the more dangerous outfits in the circuit.

Coach, M. L. Stearns' club with such veterans as Kenny Miller, a brother of the sensational Glenn, lost through graduation; Ward, Williams and King, may develop into a fast-stepping aggregation. The Knights walloped Perrysville in their opening game last week.

Lexington is idle this week.

Pittsburgh Eleven Rejects Bowl Bids in Secret Vote

Athletic Officials Deny Players Had Made Demands For Acceptance.

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Pitt's undefeated Panthers took themselves out of Rose Bowl or any other bowl consideration today, although there was a possibility they might change their minds.

By a secret vote, reported to be 16-15, the gridders rejected a proposal for any post-season contest, content with nine victories and a tie on the regular schedule.

"Sit-Down Strike."

The action constituted a "modified sit-down strike," Sports Editor Havey Boyle of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette asserted. Although university authorities denied players had made any demands, Boyle said they had requested:

Pocket money of between $100 and $200 each for a trip to Pasadena; an immediate vacation of two weeks, and that the full squad of 60 regulars and substitutes be taken along to the coast.

Immediately following the session, several players attempted to rally the squad for a second meeting to reconsider the action but failed in their first attempt. They continued their efforts.

Director of Athletics James Hagen and John Weber, secretary of the university, said in a joint statement that the university "did not and will not" call a second meeting.

They continued: "However, the situation at present, with yesterday's vote of the players tabulated, means football for the 1937 season at Pitt is concluded."

Pitt had received invitations to the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans and the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, but there was no official announcement that a Rose Bowl bid had been extended to Jock Sutherland's eleven.

Explains Vote.

Explaining the vote on a possible Rose Bowl bid, Weber said: "We had invitations from the Sugar Bowl and the Cotton Bowl which we wanted to place before the boys, so we just tossed in the Rose Bowl for consideration, too—in the event we should be invited."

The Panthers have played four times in the Rose Bowl in the last 10 years, taking the championship by defeating Washington last year, 21-0.

WEST FIFTH BLANKS FOE

The basketeers of West Fifth street school established themselves as serious title contenders Monday when they whitewashed Western, 33 to 0, in one of the opening tilts of the Grade School league on Mansfield Senior high hardwood.

While the Fifth street cagers were coasting to an easy triumph, Newman downed Brinkerhoff, 21 to 10, Carpenter smothered Bushnell, 17 to 2, Bowman edged Woodland, 11 to 8, and Hedges defeated Prospect 7 to 5, in the otherer games.

Led by R. Morehead and S. Morehead, West Fifth chalked up 10 points in the first and second chapters, and came back to add 13 more points in the final half while holding its enemies scoreless.

BEATTY AID IN OPENER

Flash Clifford, Former Animal Trainer, Meets Steele In Armory Ring.

The all-star wrestling show which Tim Nolan's Quality club will present in the Armory Wednesday night was completed today with the signing of a third bout, a one-fall contest with a 20-minute time limit.

It will send Francis Steele, Plymouth motor officer, against "Flash" Clifford of Peru, Ind., former animal trainer for Clyde Beatty.

Two lightheavyweight contests will feature the card with Jose Rodriquez, Mexican lightheavyweight contender from Mexico City, scheduled to meet Bobby Blake, blond 175-pounder from Columbus.

The other feature event will send Mike Kibbons, husky Oklahoma A. & M. contender, against "Silver Streak" Davis, whitethatched lightheavy from Houston.

Both matches are carded for two best out of three falls with an hour and a half time limit.

Field Narrows Down To Fordham, Alabama.

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Coach Leonard "Stub" Allison of University of California said today he didn't care what team the Golden Bears play in the Rose Bowl and that anyone Graduate Manager Kenneth Priestley picks is all right with him.

With withdrawal of University of Pittsburgh, unofficial No. 1 choice, Priestley's decision seemed narrowed down between Fordham and Alabama. Sports writers called it a toss-up which will be invivted to the New Year's day game at Pasadena. Always secretive, Priestley said only "no comment" when told of Pittsburgh's decision and would not say whether the Panthers were under consideration anyway.

Pitt Retains A-P Grid Lead

NEW YORK—(AP)—If you heed the fellows who look at football and write about it, Pitt's Panthers are the best collection of players in the United States this year and there's not much room for argument.

In the seventh and final weekly ranking roll of writers, made by the Associated Press, 29 of 33 experts throughout the country picked Pitt for first place. Two others split for Fordham and Alabama for top rank.

HOME BUILDING MESSAGE SPURS STOCK MARKET

Overnight Study Reveals Demand For Construction Material Shares.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks took a turn for the better in today's market, leaders moving up fractions to 2 points.

Buying became a bit more active following a quiet opening and best advances were registered near the second hour.

Overnight study of the president's home building message brought demand for construction material stocks. Steels reflected the belief mill operations are around their low mark for the recession. Rails were heartened by hopes that a rate increase would be granted them soon.

In line with the government's housing campaign, a trade survey indicated construction activities picked up during the first three weeks of this month and probably were well ahead of the same period last year.

For the first 10 months of 1937 it was noted an estimate by the F. W. Dodge corporation, put the total of building awards at $2,509,095,200 against $2,267,396,000 in the same 1936 months. The gain was said to have been principally in commercial, factory and public contracts, with residential awards lagging.

STUDY UNREST

France and Britain to Consult Powers on Peace Plan.

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos issued declarations today indicating they planned broad consultations with other powers looking toward a general settlement of world unrest.

Chamberlain's statement said Germany's colonial demands could not be considered "in isolation."

It declared France and Britain were ready to co-operate with other powers in protecting both their rights and treaty obligations in the Far East.

The statement, outlining the French and British position, was made to the house of commons after the heads of both governments had completed a two-day review of their problems and destinies in world danger spots.

HUNTERS FIGHT SEETHING ACRE OF 'RATTLERS'

Deadly Snakes Slither Out From Holes After Nimrods Kill 700 of Them.

OLNEY SPRINGS, Colo. — A one-acre plot of ground called "Rattlesnake Haven" on the prairie 20 miles northeast of here is believed to be the most snake-infested patch of ground in the world—not excluding snake farms.

Nearly 700 rattlesnakes were killed by two hunting parties on the tract which is undermined with prairie dog holes and almost four miles from the nearest dry land farm home. This particular plot was the only place in the area where the hunters encountered any of the snakes.

The snakes ranged from small reptiles to chubby ones 53 inches in length weighing four pounds.

Floyd Hunsaker and his brother, Wallace, of Avondale stumbled on the snake haven while hunting rabbits. They saw a rattler crossing the road and stopped to kill it. When they started to return to their car, another rattler blocked their path. When they shot the second rattler, the snakes started wriggling in all directions. They shot 41 of the reptiles before their supply of shells was exhauseted.

Fights Way Clear.

In four days they killed 285 rattlesnakes. They gathered the kill in bushel baskets. L. M. Johnson of Avondale who accompanied the brothers on one expedition walked into the tract and immediately found himself surrounded by the creeping, coiling snakes. He killed 15 snakes in three minutes to protect himself and was almost exhausted from swinging the club to ward off the venomous fangs.

The hunters said the glistening snakes appeared to be gathering from all directions as they crawled through the stubby grass and cactus to their one-acre wintering quarters. As many as eight snakes were killed as they emerged from a single prairie dog hole. The man who killed them was guarded from behind by other hunters who killed slithering reptiles that crawled toward the scene.

Another hunting party killed 285 of the snakes in one day, but the plot still swarms with them. Twelve was the largest number of rattles found on any of the snakes.

The second hunting party, three Pueblo, Colo., men, celebrated its kill of 285 snakes at a banquet with rattlesnake meat, stewed and roasted, furnished the piece de resistance. Rattlesnake meat is canned and sold by some companies for 45 cents an ounce. It is said to taste like chicken.

The rattlesnake skins are used to make hat bands, belts and lamp shades while the vertebrae are used to make necklaces.

Science Fearing Rapid Increase Of 'Book Lice'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. —(U.P.)— They don't bite, they don't infest clothing, and they don't carry disease. Still, Dr. E. A. Back, who attended the Pest Control association convention here, said "book lice" soon may be rated as "Public Pest No. 1."

The tiny, almost transparent insect does little if any property damage, according to Dr. Back, but its "annoying quantities and qualities" already have warranted a department of agriculture investigation.

Dr. Back said the "book louse" is not related to the "book worm." However, it often is found on or in books that have become damp or moldy.

"Book lice" have been known ever since there have been entomologists, the scientist said, but only since their increased invasions of homes and apartments have they attracted much attention.

Entomologists blame modern structures because they "contain much sealed dampness"—just the type the "book louse" seeks.

Technically, the insect is a psocid.

HUNT AMONG VEGETABLE GERMS TO FIND HIDDEN CANCER CAUSE

PHILADELPHIA — (U.P.) — A search into the realm of vegetable germs for the hidden cause of cancer was described to the American Philosophical society here by Dr. L. G. Rowntree, director of the Philadelphia Institute for medical research.

Dr. Rowntree's experiments so far, he said in an address last night, have touched only the borders of vegetables, but he said that he and his colleagues were studying the field more thoroughly in the quest for cancer's cause.

The experiments were made on 100 albino rats, in each of which cancer appeared after they had been fed a quantity of wheat-germ oil extracted from the plants by an ether process.

"These tumors," Dr. Rowntree said, "invariably arise in the abdominal cavity and are always fatal. They are produced by preparations of wheat-germ oil. The tumors are transplantable in virtually 100 per cent of the cases.

"The wheat germ oil differs from any other known tumor producing agent in that it produces results more quickly. In fact this is the first time that feeding a plant product has caused tumors.

"We are attempting to explore thoroughly the possibility that other vegetable germs may have a leading hand in starting cancer."

Dr. Rowntree said the wheat-germ in itself had no ill effect upon the rats even when given in the largest doses. He said apparently the ether extraction process makes a harmless plant deadly.

OASIS VISIONED IF DUST BOWL HOARDS WATER

Program Estimated to Cost $160,612,000 Planned For Western Areas.

AMARILLO, Tex. —(U.P.)— Visions of turning America's dust bowl region into a land of milk and honey are seen in a proposed agricultural program involving $160,612,367 in expenditures which has been recommended to authorities in Washington.

H. H. Finnell, director of the Soil Conservation Service, with headquarters in Amarillo, made the recommendation in a detailed survey. He believes that this area can be made one of the greatest agricultural region in the world.

The survey reveals possible results from an efficient utilization of water resources in the five-state region which includes the Panhandle plains. It is a long-range program, built to carry out the fullest possibilities of the natural resources of the one-time dust bowl, Finnell explains.

Water Must Be Saved.

About 75 per cent of the suggested amount would be devoted to small water-retention—such as level terraces, contour furrows, stock water ponds and small reservoirs.

Plans submitted by the Amarillo offices of the Soil Conservation Service are made in the form of a complete program to be carried out under the Pope-Jones Act, passed at the last session of congress. In estimating costs, it was pointed out that no requests for appropriations have been made, but the figures were submitted as a means of detailed information. A picture of the facts about the water resources of this region, thus is presented—at the same time showing the cost of agricultural possibilities of this territory.

The region has been divided into 16 problem areas with details of six different methods of combating the problem in each area being listed with the approximate cost. Classifications have been made in accordance with requirements set up by the Pope-Jones Act, sponsored by Rep. Marvin Jones of Amarillo.

Figures on work already done show that 5,407 miles of terraces have been constructed; 1,124 stock water and flood control dams have been built, and 28,720 check dams completed.

The completed program seeks 43,932 stock water ponds, 18,612 costing more than $1,000.

99 PER CENT!

That's How County's Personal Tax Collection Ended.

Richland county's second-half personal tax receipts totaled $176,578 for a collection of more than 99 per cent on the current charge, according to a check-up completed today by County Treasurer John E. Kolb.

The collection, the best in recent years, produced $125,904 in general personal levies and $50,669 in classified taxes.

The second-half receipts, however, will not be distributed to the county's sub-divisions until after the first of the year, Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck said. The delay in making the settlement, he added, is due to the lateness of the collection and the fact that County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe has been confined to his home by illness for more than three weeks.

'Speed Traps' In Ohio Hit Through Ruling By Duffy

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Operation of automobile speed traps by justices of the peace received a severe blow from Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy who ruled that justices could not deduct their costs from cash bonds forfeited in traffic law violation cases.

The opinion, given to State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, held that in cases where a motorist forfeits his appearance bond, the justice must send a transcript of his proceedings together with the entire amount of the bond to the common pleas court. The money then must be turned into the country treasury.

Auditor Ferguson, in asking for the opinion, stated that some justices of the peace retain costs which generally amount to 9 98 for himself and the constable making the arrest before sending the balance to the county.

MAN CLAIMS HIS BITE'S DEADLY

'Snake Charmer' Says Venom From 200 Snakes in His Body.

SYDNEY, Australia —(AP)— George Aitken, 58, who styles himself "Pambara, the Snake Charmer," says his bite is poisonous enough to kill a man.

"It's because I have so much venom in my body," he explained, while recovering from a leg amputation.

Aitken said he had been bitten by poisonous snakes at least 200 times during his 40 years as a carnival showman. Recently physicians diagnosed the cause of a swollen leg as "slow snake-venom poison" and took off the leg to save his life.

'NAIL' THAT COLD!

Check It Fast With This Four-Way Treatment!

Treat a cold to end it, not to coddle it!

Many a cold lightly treated turns into something worse.

Hit a cold "where it lives"—in the system! That means to take an internal treatment.

Hit it with a cold medicine, not with a preparation good for all kinds of ailments.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are the treatment you want.

Made for Colds and Colds Alone!

First of all, they are cold tablets, made expressly for colds.

Second, they are internal medication and of fourfold effect.

Here's what they do:

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Bromo Quinine tablets are nothing new or untried. They have been on the market for over 40 years and have proven their worth.

Be Prudent!

Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain. Both kinds are sold by all druggists, a few cents a box.

When you feel a cold coming on, don't "monkey around" with halfway measures.

Go right to your druggist for a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets).

Start taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours. Used in time, Bromo Quinine will usually break up a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed you want.

$105,000 GRANT HELPS SCHOOLS PAY OFF DEBTS

City System to Use $51,000 to Retire Notes; County Schools Get $54,000.

With the release of $105,290 by the state department of education to Mansfield and Richland county schools, the city and rural school boards today had funds to pay off their indebtedness.

The funds, a part of a $12,000,000 cash allocation made to Ohio schools, will provide $51,363 for Mansfield schools and $53,927 for the county's rural system. In addition, the Shelby special district will receive $13,658.

All of the funds must be used for retiring notes by schools which have indebtedness, while those without debts may use the allocations for operating expenses.

City Needs Entire Amount.

Mansfield schools will need the entire amount for debts, Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk of the board, said, but several of the county boards are debt free and will add the money to their general funds.

Schools pressed for operating funds will have to borrow again immediately upon authorization by the state department which is expected during early December, a dispatch from Columbus said. The department of education, now more than $6,000,000 in debt, will issue another $12,000,000 in notes probably within the next two weeks, department officials declared.

Included in today's distribution were the following amounts to schools in this section:

Ashland, city, $21,220; county, $41,141; Crestline, $7,346; Galion, $14,750; Willard, $11,077; Crawford county, $29,509; Huron county, $39,007; Knox county, $37,264, and Morrow county, $43,222.

BATTLES ICE

City Buys 2 Salt Spreaders For Street Department.

The city of Mansfield took another step today in its annual winter battle against icy streets with the purchase of two automatic salt spreaders.

Mayor Earl A. McFarland said the two spreaders had been purchased at a cost of $300 from a Galion company. The spreaders consist of a hopper with a revolving disc that can be attached to the rear of street department trucks.

McFarland explained that they can be used for distributing either salt or cinders but that the city planned to use rock salt this winter in order to protect the sewer system from clogging.

The spreaders were purchased with the hope of expediting the work of spreading the salt after a severe freeze, the mayor said.

BORDER WATCH PINCHES FLOW OF MARIJUANA

Customs Inspectors Extend Sentry Lines Into Barren Areas of Arizona.

NOGALES, Ariz. —(U.P.)— U. S. customs agents along the Mexican boundary, veterans in wars against international smuggling rings, are waging a battle to halt the flow of marijuana from its native Mexico into this country.

The Federal battle lines are moving southward into the tiny villages of the vast, barren Northern Mexico country, where the dread "giggle weed" is cultivated and grows wild.

Agents consider their current fight for eradication of the weed a gigantic task, despite the fact that they are fighting "small fry" smugglers instead of "big time" racketeers.

Veterans of wild border forays against gold, ammunition and smuggling rings, these officers declare their task difficult because of elusive tactics of the narcotics peddlers.

Law Effective In August.

The agents' first capture under the new anto-marijuana law of Congress, approved by President Roosevelt last August, occurred when they nabbed a cheaply dressed peddler with several marijuana cigarets in his possession. He was turned over to Federal narcotics officers in Phoenix, Ariz.

A few border officers say their job is easy because the marijuana peddlers are petty agents seeking a little "easy money." Their crime is not of sufficient import to force them to shoot their way out of traps.

A recent survey along the international boundary showed the average price of the "weed" cigarets is about two for 25 cents an the American side. Across the line, in the squalor of Mexican pueblos and towns, the same cigarets sell for 10 centavos, or about 3 cents.

Agents have learned the wildly sprouting weed generally is cultivated in corn fields where it can be concealed from casual observers by large stalks.

Before Congress' enactment of the present anti-marijuana law. Federal agents on the border turned over peddlers to state authorities because Federal statutes had no specific law prohibiting marijuana. Arizona and 45 other states have laws against it.

The agents, during those times, were lax in their efforts to curb the ever-increasing flow of marijuana from Mexico to the states.

In Europe more than 40,000 persons have been convicted of espionage since 1921

END WRANGLE

Plaintiffs In Property Suit Agree to $91,400 Price.

A wrangle involving the disputed ownership of extensive property holdings in and near Mansfield had been settled today in common pleas court with the decision of the three plaintiffs to purchase the properties at the appraised value.

In the action, brought against Albert E. Hancock, Mansfield, the plaintiffs, Annie Goodwin, Hazel I. Underwood and Caroline Hancock sought partition of six Mansfield lots and eight acres near the reformatory on the Olivesburg road.

The plaintiffs, who claimed three-fourths interest in the properties, agreed to purchase them for $91,400. The court ruling specifies that deeds to the holdings shall be turned over to the purchasers on the payment of $22,850 and three-fourths of the costs of the court proceedings, including $1,000 counsel fee for Atty. W. H. Gifford.

PROTESTS NOISE

Resident Claims Train Whistles Bother His Dogs.

HOUSTON, Tex.—(AP)—Pat Evans, city employe, took his day off to complain to the city council about train whistles.

"I figure they whistle in Houston exactly 12,500 times a day," he said. "That's too much noise. Even the dogs howl, it is so nerve-racking."

He asked repeal of a law passed in 1893 requiring trains to whistle four times at each grade crossing.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER XXVII

"Frankly, I couldn't make it out," said McClung, with his customary brutal truthfulness.

"Mr. Reporter, read the transcript of this incident."

A few minutes later he turned back. "Mr. Daniels, understand that you are under contempt of court for questioning the defendant, except as a witness. Whether I impose that penalty depends on future revelations."

* * *

Daniels sank back into his chair.

"I shall now ask a few questions of the defendant: Miss Jepson, why, if you wish to answer, did you interrupt the testimony of the witness Violet Smith when the same explanation could have been brought out in regular form through your own cross-examination?"

Elna was on her feet, her palms pressed flat against the table.

"Because there wasn't time for cross-examination," she said coolly. "The girl's testimony was finished. Mr. McClung knew nothing about the glass, and there wasn't time to tell him. If I had had time, I could tell more. But I had to save Mr. Daniels as well as my self. I'm sure he wouldn't want to bring a false witness. I know the prosecution wants the truth."

* * *

Judge Ashton leaned back and wiped his brow. By his own question in investigating the court irregularity, he had let this girl make a jury speech. He might have dismissed the jury, but his sense of justice prevented him from refusing to let them hear the explanation when they had heard the original scene.

He called the attorneys to the bench. "Gentlemen," he said, "this is a dilemma for all of us, in which we are all at fault. I am very much afraid of a mistrial. You made a great mistake in not calling me at once, when questioning the defendant, Mr. Daniels. I had wondered if you now thought your witness so important as to be indispensable. In that case, this entire episode, which involves culpability on the part of the district attorney as well as the defendant, might be stricken from the record."

McClung turned back for a nod from Elna.

"We stipulate," he said.

"We stipulate," Daniels gratefully agreed.

"I shall now admonish the defendant." The judge leaned far over the front of the bench as Elna came slowly forward. "Young lady, your performance in getting your cross-examination before the jury almost cost me the first mistrial of my life. After this, remember that a defendant in court speaks only as a witness in answer to questions or when addressed by the court."

"I'm sorry I almost caused you trouble," Elna said, "but you see, it was the only thing to do—the only way to truth and justice, and that's what we're after, isn't it? I knew it was against the rule for the defendant to talk, but as long as I did all the talking and was already in jail, I didn't see what you could do but give me a scolding. And I got my side before the jury, you see! Now they'll think something was wrong with the Smith girl's testimony—as there certainly was—or it all wouldn't be withdrawn. That left my withdrawal clear, because I had nothing more to answer. Then it occurred to me that if I could just draw Mr. Daniels into it, so that he was talking to me, something was bound to break."

"It did," said Judge Ashton, and limped wearily from the bench.

* * *

Elna entered the courtroom the next morning with a new confidence. Even the papers, most of them against her, had caught fire at her wild seizure of court the day before and had treated her well. Each of them praised Judge Ashton's solution by removing the incident from the record.

Surprisingly, Rose from the city jail had visited her the preceding evening.

Rose said proudly. "Dr. Grayson got me a job as practical nurse, with some one who knows all about me. I came to see you because I learned that every one of a bunch of girls you played bridge with is going to be brought out tomorrow against you to swear that you said you would kill Mrs. Ainsworth after you caught her cheating."

Elna threw her arms around Rose's neck. "I'll spend the whole night thinking back just what did happen, what I did say, and then I'll make out the questions for McClung's cross-examination."

For McClung she wrote questions for cross-examination of each player and had handed them to him in the morning with the heading: "Motive coming up, I killed Mrs. Ainsworth because she cheated at bridge."

The questions ran:

Did you inform Miss Jepson in advance that high stakes were in play?

Did she play honestly with each one of you?

When she won back her losses and accused Mrs. Ainsworth of cheating did she offer to give up the game nevertheless?

Did each of you insist that Mrs. Ainsworth had cheated and that the game stand?

Did Miss Jepson's remark alarm you at the time—that it, did you not consider it a deliberate exaggeration to restore the peace? Think back hard to the tone and manner of those words.

Did you not laugh after those words?

Would you have laughed if you had considered it a sinister threat of murder?

* * *

The morning passed exceptionally well, Elna thought. The bridge players weakened even under examination. Seeing danger, Daniels released all after the first one or two as cumulative, turned them over for cross-examination, and their testimony was reversed by Elna's clear remembrance of the game.

The next group of witnesses, Georgiana, Harold and Louise, wasted their glances of withering scorn. Daniels, who had intended to make quite a character point of having a girl's own relatives testify against her, wished the idea had never occurred to him. They could not be stopped. They overplayed the hand. No one in the world would believe that lurid picture was a portrait of Elna Jepson.

McClung rose to object at one point, but Elna's hand clutched his arm and pulled him down.

A husky voice, obviously intending to whisper, but audible to Elna and several neighbors, purred: "No wonder she left. I wouldn't have to do with them cats myself for a million."

Elna scrawled a hasty order to McClung: "No cross-examination!"

Daniels sighed with relief. He did not want these particular witnesses subjected to what he now unconsciously called "Jepson's" line of cross-examination.

* * *

District Attorney Daniels rose. "Your honor, we have only one more witness, who is not immediately available, as we had expected this morning's proceedings to take longer. May we therefore ask for a short mid-recess of—say fifteen or twenty minutes?"

"I appreciate that a good deal of ground has been covered—the motion is granted."

Back in jail, Elna was so tired she heard a banging on the outside door almost before her eyes had closed, or so it seemed. "Hey, Jamieson," she heard, "can you bring her down this time? Court's goin' to open in about two minutes and I've just one more hand to play."

"Sure." She heard Jailer Jamieson lumber up the stairs. "All right, little lady?"

"No." For the first time that answer came from the jail.

"Hold court five minutes if you can!" Jamieson yelled down to Larry.

"Don't bother him—I'm just too tired to go—any more." the voice was fainter behind the door which Jamieson had been too engrossed to enter. He peered in at her now and bawled below, "Tell his honor the defendant will be there within five minutes. I'm curing her."

* * *

Jamieson entered slowly and let Elna cling to his shoulders. "You musn't make a breakaway," he said. "We think little of man or woman who pleads to a case and then drops it in the middle. I thought, from what you told me, that the Jepsons were not like that."

"I am quite ready now." Elna removed her arms from the jailer's shoulders.

"You're not," Jamieson contradicted sternly. "I said I was dosing you. I don't know the dose for a lady that isn't used to it. But I'll tell you this. The judge don't like tricks, and wingdings, even real wingdings, in his court. If this stuff sets you singing 'Annie Laurie,' at least his honor will know it's honest come-by and will adjourn court. On the other hand, this is more than even I've taken before, and it may make you dopey, or get you clear as a bell. Here you are!"

For the moment Elna could only feel an intense burning in her stomach, followed by a swaying consideration of the effect of drunkenness in a courtroom. Either Jamieson, in his excitement, had given her less than he thought, or her own inner excitement served as a counter-effect. At any rate the outer air struck her with a violence that steadied her legs and even her voice.

"I want to go back as Elna Jepson," she whispered into Jamieson's ear.

Jamieson consulted the jail desk. "Miss Jepson wants to walk with me around the block. Then she will appear. O. K?."

The deputy consulted a mouthpiece. "If she's not back them, the judge'll break hell open."

Don't Bully Constipation

Many purgatives over-stimulate your intestines. That's why you suffer from griping. Why not try a NATURAL laxative food—Kellogg's All-Bran!

If you have common constipation, All-Bran will keep you "regular" as the clock's tick. Instead of OVER-STIMULATING your intestines, it gives them two things they need. First, All-Bran supplies "bulk"—it absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. Second, it's a good source of vitamin "B,"—the amazing vitamin that tones up your intestinal tract.

Eat crunchy, toasted All-Bran with milk or cream and fruits. In muffins it's delicious. But however you eat it, use it REGULARLY: eat two tablespoons of All-Bran and drink plenty of water. If you do this every day you can avoid common constipation and cathartics, too! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. At every grocer's.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1937.

It is always disillusioning to learn that the losing team also ate the same kind of breakfast food.

Little Orphan Annie may not understand what it's all about—but anyhow she is right in the midst of a lesson that shows how "crime doesn't pay."

Great Britain, we're told, is going to make a "token payment" on her debt. And now if the government will just let the rest of us debtors do the same, there won't be any trouble at all about the federal income tax.

This Week's Lecture Series.

AN unusual opportunity to come in contact with new ideas is being offered in Mansfield this week in the form of a lecture series by Howard J. Wisehaupt, of New York, who has gained considerable reputation as a personality builder, business analyst and merchandising counselor.

The immense popularity of Dale Carnegie's recent book, "How to Make Friends and Influence People," indicates the great amount of public interest in subjects dealing with self-improvement.

The series of talks and demonstrations to be given at Senior high school auditorium, starting tonight and continuing through Thursday evening, is along a line that should not only prove interesting and entertaining but that should also be beneficial to many people who aspire to increased earnings through development of greater ability in the work in which they are engaged.

These lectures should prove valuable not only to men and women who are now employed in some phase of business or industry but should also be helpful to college and high school graduates who have had difficulty in finding employment or in holding a job.

Without inclination to criticise, it is only fair to divulge that the difficulty encountered by a number of people in securing and holding a job rests with themselves and their inability to get along with other people. It is possible that such information and suggestions as will be made available in this series of lectures will aid some of those in attendance to recognize their own weak spots, thus placing them in position to correct them.

The time devoted to attending these three lectures might even be worth as much as a year in college—and there is no charge for the tickets.

Japan Explains.

THE rights and wrongs of that undeclared Asiatic war are very clear in Japan, especially to "The Business Men of Kyoto," in whose name a propaganda booklet now flooding America is issued. Americans learn from it such enlightening things as these:

"The Chinese have not only failed to understand the true motives of Japan, but have increasingly aroused a spirit of contempt and have offered resistance toward Japan, taking advantage of the patience of our government. The Japanese government has repeatedly requested China to change her attitude, but all in vain.

"Japan has been singled out to bear the brunt of the Chinese attack. This is nothing but a smoke screen. Knowing that some of the western nations are jealous of Japan's rapid rise, the anti-Japanese hostilities are a trick on the part of China to stir up animosity against this country, and at the same time to unify her nation at the expense of Japan. The next step in China's well calculated plans is to exclude the influence of all other countries."

The wickedness of China and the benevolence of Japan are beyond all understanding. Still more monumental is the Japanese lack of humor.

Lawyers' Background.

LAW students at a banquet the other evening were given some surprising advice. One speaker urged them to go back to the classics for their professional foundation. Modern trends in education, he said, had disturbed the mental equilibrium of students and had left them too often with only superficial and scanty learning.

To counteract that weakness he would have them study the Latin and Greek classics, the biographies of great English and American jurists, the Bible, the fundamental legal doctrine upon which common law is based, historical documents such as Magna Charta and the Constitution of the United States, and the great philosophies of history.

This doubtless sounded old-fashioned to some of those law students. And maybe it didn't seem to harmonize with the advice of the second speaker, a judge.

The judge told them their greatest danger lay in failing to realize that American law is still in the experimental stage. A new type of law must be developed to meet new conditions.

The two views are not at all incompatible. The former really paves the way for the latter.

Plucky Widow.

CONSIDER the case of Mrs. Jennie Lyubi, aged 44, of Conneaut. She is a widow with six children, and very little money, but a good deal of self-confidence. She has always wanted to own a home, and since her husband died has wanted it more than ever. So she is building it. And to make every dollar go as far as possible, she is doing it herself.

It will be a six-room frame house. She has the outside carpenter work done, and expects to have it finished enough to move into by another month or two. She learns everything as she goes along. Even the bricklaying and plastering and plumbing, she says, she will do with her own hands. It is often puzzling, but she finds a way. Naturally, when she gets stuck on technique, some professional carpenter or mason or plumber is likely to come along and show her how.

Many a woman pioneer in this country did the same thing, but latterly such cases are scarce. Mrs. Lyubi herself is a recent pioneer running true to form.

That Brussels conference hasn't stopped the war, but at least it has let Japan know what the world thinks of her.

These self-tuning radios would be irresistible if they tuned out the commercial blurbs.

"DON'T MIND IF I WATCH, DO YOU?"

Weak Spots Disclosed In New Deal Tax Plan

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Fiscal experts are having a terrible time trying to hit on a method to reduce or wholly abolish certain federal taxes without correspondingly increasing other taxes and yet without reducing the total of Uncle Sam's tax receipts.

There is an economic axiom known as the "law of diminishing returns," which the experts are "up against."

The idea is that taxes can be increased and increased and increased up to certain point, all the time yielding more and more; but after that point has been passed many tax-ees simply quit business, discouraged, whereupon they no longer are producing anything to be taxed on. From that point onward tax collections dwindle—and dwindle faster and faster with each succeeding rate increase.

* * *

THE INTENTION

What is called the "undivided profits tax" appears to have worked this way.

The intention with this tax was to compel corporations, which were making money, to pay all that money out annually to their stockholders, in the form of dividends.

The argument was that profit-making companies were in the habit of tucking away a large part of their gains as "reserves," thus keeping that much cash out of useful circulation. Also, it was reasoned, a regular distribution of these dividends would jar a percentage of them loose in the shape of income taxes

Accordingly, the notion was to place too heavy an import upon these reserves to make it profitable for the companies to keep them undivided.

* * *

A FAILURE?

It was done, and, for the current economic recession, that tax is held largely responsible. The administration itself admits that the plan was worse than a fizzle.

Maybe the companies HAD overdone their reserves a trifle.

Still, they were entitled to save up a bit against possible future rainy days. Incidentally they were entitled to save up with a view to opportunities involving subsequent expansion—with increased commercial activity and more employment.

The tax estopped any such program.

* * *

WHERE ELSE?

New Dealers admit their mistake.

They do not admit it with much enthusiasm but they are willing to have the tax trimmed or even abolished.

But their question is:

Where else are they going to get that revenue?

* * *

WHY CONGRESS BALKS

By a "broadening," as they say, of the "income tax base?"

If so, a lot of us folk who have paid (and pretty grouchfully) small income taxes, will have our assessments raised. And a lot of others, who have escaped heretofore, will be "stuck" henceforward.

What will that do to the future electoral chances of lawmakers who voted for it?

It will retire a couple of hundreds of them.

Or shall it be done by a federal sales tax? That will increase the cost of living. Try to get congress to vote THAT!

* * *

TRY TO TRIM!

Yet federal expenditures cannot be trimmed.

It is suggested—but, phooey! The minute the thought is mentioned the national Conference of Mayors descends on Washington, and, through Mayor Fiorella H. La Guardia of New York, backed by Chicago and St. Louis and Milwaukee and every other important place, demands more relief funds.

There have got to be reductions without reducing.

No wonder fiscal experts are worried.

A Man He Knows.

Editor News-Journal:

I know a man in this town who is a very enjoyable chap. When he visits me or when I visit him, I always find him pleasant, congenial and possessed of excellent manners. He doesn't eat with his knife, interrupt rudely when someone is talking nor does he go around with a chip on his shoulder, striking people who get in his way.

I know a man in this town who pulls up to a traffic light with the intention of making a left turn. The split second he sees a slightly yellowish haze, he grits his teeth, races his motor and cuts in front of approaching traffic. He presses viciously upon his horn button, enjoying, I doubt not an unholy glee in further rattling the poor driver ahead whose only fault is a stalled motor and whose only desire is to betake himself rapidly to more peaceful scenes. This man I know can exhibit more ungentlemanly, more ill-mannerly actions in ten minutes behind the wheel than I can list in the same period of time.

So what, you say, is the connection.

He is the same man, I answer.

This comment, incidentally, singles out no one man. It is intended solely to ask this question—Why should we leave manners, decency and common sense at home when we drive?

Health Advice

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND—

Should Dead Teeth Be Pulled?

"DEAD TEETH" and their relationship to health have always excited much controversy. This confusion of thought puzzles the layman because one dentist tells him to have the dead tooth removed, while another advises against its removal.

Pulpless teeth, dead teeth, are possessed by millions of persons. There is no doubt that many harbor such teeth without being aware of their presence. Often infection is present without giving any sign.

Such a focus or center of infection undoubtedly plays a part in many of the so-called constitutional disorders. That many of its poisons will be absorbed into the system is almost a certainty if pus is present. When this occurs, other structures and organs of the body may be endangered.

Pulpless teeth, when no pus has formed, are harmless enough. But if infection is definitely present, and that fact is confirmed by an x-ray examination, there should be no hesitancy about extraction.

Examinations Needed.

All those who have dead teeth and are unwilling to have them removed should have periodic x-ray examinations. Since pulpless teeth are without sensitiveness, it is only by means of the x-ray that pus or other evidence of infection can be detected. These examinations should be repeated at regular times so that there shall be no oversight of a possible infection.

No one is anxious to lose his teeth. I regard it as fortunate that the present trend is against the ruthless extraction of teeth. But, as I have indicated, if definite evidence exists for their removal, it is unwise to delay.

In many instances there may be a question of doubt as to the proper procedure. Under such circumstances, I believe that close co-operation between the patient, dentist and doctor will solve the problem. If there is any sign of a constitutional disorder and no other explanation can be found, the teeth must be examined. In that event, if dead teeth are present in the mouth, it is best that they be removed.

I cannot overstate the importance of periodic visits to the dentist. Protect your teeth against dental decay and you will guard the entrance place of germs and disease. If in doubt, your doctor and dentist will outline the necessary precautions that should be taken.

Keeping Step

By LESLIE EICHEL

Not a Depression, Merely Distrust.

"WHAT we have been experiencing is not a major bear market," says an exhortation from Roger Babson's organization. "It is a huge wave of general distrust and pessimism, in a longer-term bull market. Actually business is not nearly so bad as sentiment. The banking situation is excellent and investors not over-extended. Nothing is fundamentally wrong. We feel that the current contraction in employment is temporary.

"From the U. S. bureau of agriculture comes the assuring word that farmers' total cash income for 1937 will approach nine billion dollars or 12 per cent more than 1936. After all, the world must eat. With bumper crops and high world demand, business should steadily expand for both home and foreign markets."

But we have had bumper crops previously, and much of the world has not eaten. Something WAS fundamentally wrong.

* * *

FARM INCOME

Anyway, "it is now quite unlikely that the annual income (for U. S. farmers) will reach the nine billion dollars forecasted by the U. S. department of agriculture," says the Alexander Hamilton Institute. The income is estimated at less than $8,798,000,000, which includes $425,000 in benefit payments. Constantly falling agricultural prices are being reflected in manufacturing and on security exchanges.

Lower prices would be beneficial and would bring an even greater sum to farmers than higher prices if the United States and other nations would agree to exchange manufactured goods for agricultural products and raw materials. Nearly all the trouble in and among nations is based over the failure to get together on that.

* * *

EXPORT TRADE

At that "export trade is at a new peak for the recovery movement," according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. Or, at least it was till a month ago, when the worst of the recession set in.

But the very fact that export trade was at a peak caused weakness in securities. For other nations needed every available credit to finance their purchases and had nothing left for security investment.

The drain of capital on an importing nation thus even has repercussions on the exporting nation. As long as goods are not exchanged for goods, and money is not used merely as the token of exchange, the world will suffer severe financial reactions.

* * *

GOLD EXPORTS

There need be no worry over the gold exports from the United States. The United States does not need this gold. The remainder of the world, except the Soviet Union, does need it. (The Soviet Union is the largest miner of gold.)

In fact, the United States in buying gold to maintain its stability has had to borrow heavily to get the cash. Queer, isn't it?

* * *

CUTS INTEREST BURDEN

Now, as some of the gold goes out, the United States government can repay some of the loans it negotiated to buy the gold.

"It should be remembered," says the Alexander Hamilton Institute, "that the United States had $12,804,000,000 of gold on Nov. 9, 1937, of which $1,272,000,000 was held in the inactive account, and never became a part of the credit structure of the country.

"The gold shipped to Europe, if taken from the inactive gold account would have the following ultimate effects:

"First, it would result in a decline in the amount of gold held by the treasury in the inactive fund, and secondly, it would increase deposits of the treasury with the banks.

"In other words, an outflow of gold would increase the working balances of the treasury, and thereby either make it unnecessary for the treasury to borrow in the open market or enable it to repurchase some of its outstanding treasury bills.

"Thus, an overflow of gold, if met through the active gold account, would be a very wholesome development.

"Even if the outflow of gold should exceed the total held in the inactive gold account, a development which seems improbable at the moment, the effect on the United States still would be beneficial, for it could be met through the Exchange Stabilization Fund. This fund holds $1,800,000,000 in gold, which the treasury could utilize without in any way affecting the credit structure of the country."

AN OBJECT LESSON?

There may be an object lesson in the fact that although the United States accumulated the largest stock of gold in the world's history, it suffered the most serious relapse in trade of any nation. Take all the gold away from other nations, pile it sky high, and you will not be wealthy; you will starve. The ancients learned that. Thus the fable of Midas who wished for the golden touch. He was saved from starving to death by a kind Magi who undid his wish.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON—

"Help Yourself to Happiness."

YOU'RE not happy.

How'd I guess it?

That's easy—not one person out of a thousand is happy. They may look the part. They may seem to be sitting pretty . . . to have all the makings of joy, content and confidence . . . health, wealth, fond family and friends. Yet, inwardly, something's wrong.

They're bored, irritable . . . fretted by little things . . . nagged by memories they can't down.

WHY? WHY CAN'T MATURE PEOPLE, WITH ALL THE MAKINGS OF INNER CONFIDENCE AND CONTENT . . . HEALTH, SUFFICIENT WEALTH, FOND FAMILY AND FRIENDS . . . ACHIEVE THAT JOY WHICH SEEMS TO BE OUR ETERNAL RIGHT?

Because they look for that joy in the wrong place . . . and therefore neglect to do the one thing which will insure it.

We think that outer circumstances determine our happiness. They don't. HAPPINESS IS A MATTER OF MENTAL HOUSECLEANING. We all know how to keep a kitchen or office in shining order . . . by screening windows against flies, barring doors against loafers, protecting budgets against waste of money or time.

It's easy to do this with a house. But it's also as easy—and as necessary—to do it with that most important of all workshops—your mind. You can make your mind happy and serene as surely as you can your office—and by exactly the same process.

Happiness doesn't "just happen." It doesn't depend on good luck or money or the Other Fellow's attitude. It depends upon your "housekeeping" — your management of your own thoughts and feelings. AND THAT MANAGEMENT IS UP TO YOU.

Once we believed that we were, mentally and emotionally, at the mercy of our surroundings—that we "had to think" or "had to feel" as circumstances dictated. We might control our acts, if we were sufficiently strong, but our thoughts and feelings had no safeguard.

NOW WE KNOW THAT A BRAIN IS AS EASILY LOCKED AS A DOOR . . . AN EMOTION AS EASILY DENIED AS A DANGEROUS TRAMP. WE DO NOT "HAVE" TO THINK OR FEEL . . . WE CAN ADMIT AND ALLOW ONLY THOSE THOUGHTS AND FEELINGS WHICH ARE BENEFICIAL . . . DENY ENTRANCE TO THOSE WHICH ARE NOT.

But how can this be done? By setting up mental "screens." Refuse to listen to things which are bound to work havoc . . . vicious gossip, smutty stories, unbalanced ranting, stupid fear, the caterwauling of crybabies. Or, if you cannot help listening—shut the ears of your spirit. Let the sound drift by you as you would the dust on the wind, but do not let yourself become emotionally involved. Say to yourself—"IT SHALL NOT PASS!" And remember that nothing can harm you unless you, yourself, let it in.

An amazing fact, isn't it? Want to know more about it? Then get David Seabury's remarkable new book — "HELP YOURSELF TO HAPPINESS"—newly published by Whittlesey House. A book you can't do without. There are thousands of tomes filled with ponderous palavar, which claim to be good for what ails you. But here is one whose simple phrases fit anyone's need—heal anyone's hurt. Each passage might easily be a bit from your own life.

For instance, there's this problem of Thinking For Yourself . . . Should you assert yourself, even at the expense of hurt feelings, possible grudges? Or bow to the other fellow's opinion from timidity or sentimentality?

"NO!" whams David Seabury. "To accept domination is as bad as to submit to rape. The privacy of your body is not half as important as the sanctity of your spirit. Let no one's ego enter into your personality. Do not prostitute your pride in the foolish idea it is your "duty." Just so did girls in certain Asiatic tribes allow themselves to be sold by their fathers to whoever bid the most for their bodies. It was their "duty." If it is not yours, it also is not necessary to become psychically despoiled.

Straight talk! There are 345 pages of it . . . 345 pages that will change the course of your life and set you free if you'll put them to work.

Trial Balloons In Indiana.

The city of Indianapolis has bought 200 toy balloons for its police department. When a motorist is accused of drunken driving he will be required to breathe into a little balloon—size II. A laboratory test will be made of the breath to ascertain the amount of alcohol in the system of the blower. This cannot, of course, disclose the effect of a given quantity of alcohol upon an individual, for oen person may be intoxicated by a single drink of whisky while another who carries his liquor better, might be less drunken after imbibing three, four, or even more.

However, the balloon test may help some where the police and the courts have been experiencing difficulty in determining if and when a defendant is drunk.

The aromatic evidence blown into the "trial" balloons may help the judge pass upon the credibility of the fellow who swears he had only one little drink, or two beers at most before the accident occurred.—Toledo Blade.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

CHARLES B. COCHRAN, the London producer, has just wound up a long visit to America. He is picturesque in the theater in the manner of Ziegfeld, Erlanger, and Dillingham. British born, but reared in America, he has spent much of his professional life in London.

He began in the manner of W. A. Brady, sponsoring from rags to riches melodramas of the vanquished ten, twent, thirts with sideline excursions into dime museum experiments. Incidentally he and Brady are old cronies, having first met at the ringside of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight.

Cochran has lived so long in England he has a full blown British accent. As top impresario in Albion he has produced more hit shows than any other. He once had five successes running simultaneously. Among his outstanding smashes was Noel Coward's "Cavalcade."

Like Ziegfeld and his man Sidney; one of the closest confidants of Cochran is his valet, who is constantly within call. The producer is in his 60's but looks no more than 50. Too, he has all the energies and enthusiasms of the newcomer to the theater.

The parade ground for the more expert rhumba specialists is a down-the-cellar place near the Winter Garden called Club Yumuri. Mostly the patrons are the sleek-haired Latins and their high-combed ladies who take the dances seriously—dropping in for dinner and never missing a number. There are many finished exploiters of the ace Cuban dance caper, but leading the pack at the moment is Joseph Schenck of the movies. With Orson Munn, socialite, two jerks and a twitch behind.

Kermit Roosevelt is the least clothes-conscious of the famous clan. He will have no truck with dandyism and almost has to be hogtied to get him in a dinner jacket. Even then, if he isn't watched he is liable to fare forth with a pair of blue serge pantaloons and tan oxfords. His necktie is always lacking several hitches and his belt-held trousers appear likely at any moment to slip from their moorings. Incidentally, young Teddy Roosevelt has become far more popular of late. He has always been in a tough spot as the result of acquiring the name and inheriting many mannerisms of his illustrious father. A devoted family man, he is unusually chummy with his sons and especially thoughtful of his widowed mother. Associates in business also sound his praises.

I've often thought Tullio Carmanati, the well-dressed fellow of the movies, gets more genuine enjoyment out of dressing up than anyone. I used to run into him rather frequently on the avenue at the 5 o'clock hour of strut. Every appointment of his wardrobe was just so. One could imagine a full half hour in attaining the proper tilt to his hat. The loop of his wine-colored four-in-hand was a miniature sail gracefully bellying a breeze. His lapel flower and set of his breast pocket kerchief were simply perfection. All the little things so essential in Brummeling stressed—the wrist flap of the glove turned back to the right fraction and his collar and spats as snug as paper on the wall. To one who often tried for the same sartorial splendor only to glance back during a promenade to behold a dragging garter, he was an inspiration. A realization of wish fulfillment.

Few know the struggles his wife, Betty, had to make Will Rogers dude up a mite. His favorite costume, the one he loved to wear around his enormous ranch, was a pair of washed out overalls and faded blue workshirt. He received many dignitaries who dropped in, while so bedecked. Now and then Mrs. Rogers would catch him trying to slip off to town and would force him to spruce up. He would wear a necktie until it was sneaked from him and he never went to a tailor in his life. Generally he bought a hand-me-down, leaving the old one and wearing the new right out of the store. Albert Einstein is another careless dresser in the fields of genius. He often roams the town without a necktie and wearing shoes that are not mates.

Utopia Around the Corner Note: One of those early morning whistlers was on the loose today—the first I've heard in several years. He was whistling the Mocking Bird with variations. From my window he caught my friendly wave, grinned and went spang back into his aria. Maybe the world is all right after all.

ASHLAND REAL VALUES CLIMB 9.09 PER CENT

Auditor Estimates County Tax Duplicate at Close to $43,000,000.

ASHLAND—With public utility appraisals not yet completed, new valuation figures released by F. E. Wicks, county auditor, reveals that real estate valuations for taxing purposes have increased 9.09 per cent, it has been announced here.

The figures, which Wicks has been awaiting for some time, show that the increase is slightly in excess of two and one-half million dollars on just real estate and land alone. New appraisal figures on public utilities have not yet been completed.

An increase in property valuation in the city of Ashland by 10.28 per cent was credited to the fact that in the new appraisal, the increased building activities in Ashland forced the rate factor up. Wicks said that even without the increased building activity there would have been an increased tax duplicate in this city.

Real estate valuation in the county is now $30,538,710; last year the figure was $27,993,400.

Estimated at 43 Millions.

An estimated county tax duplicate places the personal properties and utilities at approximately 43 million dollars; the taxes for 1936 were levied on a duplicate of close to 40 million dollars.

Other figures released in the appraisal showed that structures in the various municipalities of the county have a valuation of $13,754,500; lots and lands in corporations, $5,057,670. The value of lands in the townships was placed at $8,127,490, with the value of structures in the townships given at $3,543,340.

Only subdivisions to show a decrease in valuations are Hanover township, $5,380, Mohican township, $10,370, and Jeromesville village, $18,150.

The new valuations, compared to those of 1936 are as follows:

FILES SUIT IN TRUSTEE VOTE FOR CRAWFORD

Candidate, Defeated by Coin Toss, Hits Methods of Vote Tabulation at Election.

BUCYRUS—Not satisfied with the decision reached by tossing a coin to determine an election, Donald Orewiler, defeated candidate for township trustee in Vernon township, late Monday filed a suit in common pleas court against Emil Fisher, successful candidate, demanding a recount of the close vote.

Orewiler alleges that the precinct and county election boards failed to count ballots in favor of himself; counted ballots in favor of Fisher; failed to correctly enumerate and tabulate the ballots and erroneously declared Fisher the winner.

Both candidates received 66 votes in the election night counting. A coin was tossed and Fisher won. In a recount that followed Orewiler lost one vote, leaving Fisher the winner, 66 to 65.

Philip Waldbauer, a third candidate, received 73 votes.

Commenting on the suit Orewiler said he believes that he would be declared the final winner. He has posted a $25 bond with Clerk of Courts Carl Ross.

AP ALL-AMERICA

By the COMPOSITE SPORTS EXPERT

Anybody can pick a so-called ALL-AMERICA football team. In fact, almost everybody does.

But the important thing is to give readers of American sports a real ALL-AMERICA.

Such a task requires first-hand observation and team work by hundreds of men who actually are on the ground to study every gridiron move.

Since 1925 the annual ALL-AMERICA of The Associated Press has been selected by 1,400 football specialists—the sports editors of 1,400 member newspapers.

They form the composite football expert. From coast to coast, these men see all games through trained eyes.

They make their nominations to AP's General Sports Editor, Alan Gould, who analyzes and announces their findings.

The product of this scientific sifting of the nation's gridiron talent is an authentic ALL-AMERICA.

The Associated Press ALL-AMERICA selections will appear in this member newspaper the first week in December.

PRESIDENT ASKS CONGRESS CURB ON ROAD FUNDS

Requests Solons to Cancel Millions Appropriated For Highway Construction.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt asked congress today to reduce greatly the government's immediate financial outlay for aiding the states in highway construction.

Asserting that "definite steps" are necessary to balance the budget, Mr. Roosevelt proposed in a special message:

1. Cancellation of a $214,000,000 apportionment authorized for distribution among the states during the 1939 fiscal year.

2. Spreading over the next two fiscal years a $200,000,000 appropriation balance authorized for the present (1938) fiscal year.

Fixes Fund Limit.

3. A limit of $125,000,000 annually on all public roads authorizations for and after the 1940 fiscal year (compared to a total of $238,000,000 each for 1938 and 1939).

4. Revision of the federal-aid highway law to eliminate a requirement that the federal government apportion to the various states the annual amount authorized for appropriation.

Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that since enactments of the first federal aid highway act in 1916 more than $3,100,000,000 of regular and emergency appropriations have gone from the federal treasury into road-building.

He contrasted the $298,000,000 annual average for the last five years with an average of less than $100,000,000 in each of the five years preceding the depression.

The message said that so far this fiscal year there has been $24,500,000 appropriated for federal aid highways and elimination of grade crossings and $13,500,000 for roads and trails connected with national parks.

Western senators led an incipient revolt against Mr. Roosevelt's curtailment recommendations even before the message reached the capitol.

JEWRY MARKS FESTIVAL WEEK

'Feast of Dedication' Held In Memory of Recapture of Jerusalem Temple.

Mansfield citizens of the Jewish faith this week are joining in the celebration of the festival of Chanukkoh, which will continue through Sunday, Rabbi D. Rub, of the Mansfield Jewish congregation announced today.

The holiday known as "The Feast of Dedication," will be observed for eight days with home celebrations and services in the synagogue.

Services for the congregation here will be held at 8 p. m. today and at 8 p. m. Sunday at 132 West Second street, Rabbi Rub announced.

The festival commemorates the recapture of the temple of Jerusalem from the hands of the Syrian-Greeks more than 2,000 years ago. Central in the home celebration of Chanukkoh is the lighting of a nine-branched Menorah, or candelabrum. A light is kindled the first night, two the second, and so on until on the eighth night, the entire candelabrum is ablaze.

Gifts make Chanukkoh an important holiday for the children. Parties and games, and the remembrance of less fortunate members of the community, are the order of the week.

"The next decade will be the biggest and best this country has ever experienced," Howard J. Wisehaupt, New York, business analyst, forecasted at the Rotary club meeting at noon today at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Wisehaupt is in Mansfield for a series of three lectures which opens tonight at the High school auditorium.

Having passed through an era dominated by physical strength and a period during which wealth was attained through mental agility, America is now entering a "heart era," Wisehaupt predicted, in which rich men will attain greatest happiness in contributing to the welfare of others.

As it is now, he asserted, 37½ families control the money of America, with the result that this country is unable to properly sustain a hundred and twenty-five million people in an area capable of providing for the needs of four times that number.

Louis A. Ott was chairman of the meeting, at which W. L. Miller, club president presided.

Starting tonight and continuing through Thursday, Wisehaupt is to speak at Senior high school auditorium on the subjects, "How to Influence People," "Personality In Business," and "How to Earn More Money."

BANK ROBBERY KILLER TO HANG

Sentenced to Die In Michigan Under Federal Law.

BAY CITY, Mich.—(AP)—Anthony Chebatoris, Detroit hoodlum, convicted of murder in connection with a bank robbery attempt, was sentenced by Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle today to be hanged at the federal detention farm at Milan, Mich., next July 8.

Chebatoris, who would be the second white man to be executed in Michigan history, appeared unmoved as sentence was passed.

Chebatoris was convicted of slaying Henry J. Porter, a Bay City truck driver.

As Michigan state law does not provide capital punishment, Chebatoris was brought to trial in federal court under the national bank robbery act of 1934, which includes the death penalty for murder in connection with a robbery attempt on an institution holding federal funds.

'HATCHET MEN' AND POLITICAL FOES WINED, DINED BY DAVEY

By E. E. EASTERLY

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Members of the legislature—"hatchet men," Republicans and Democrats—declared a temporary armistice last night and sat down with Gov. Martin L. Davey in a "love feast" unequaled perhaps since he took office nearly three years ago.

The governor was host, and not an unharmonious word was spoken as more than 200 persons wined and dined as his guests.

The occasion produced some most unorthodox situations. For instance:

Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder, an arch-enemy (politically) of the administration, was seated between Democratic State Chairman Francis W. Poulson and Mrs. Myrna Smith, the governor's personal secretary, to whom the leader of the senate "hatchet men" referred to as "my attractive dinner companion."

Sail Yoder, "It is a pleasure to meet with such good fellows. I thank the governor for inviting the hatchet men to his party." He philosophized upon politics and the fellowship of mankind and remarked:

"After all, we are just 120 million ants on an ant hill."

Sen. Verner E. Metcalf of Marietta, the Republican floor leader, who has pulled no punches in criticizing the governor on the senate floor, said:

"It is a great compliment to a great governor that a roup like this will assemble at the invitation of that governor." He apparently couldn't help adding, however:

"If this dinner had been called a year ago, maybe all the people over Ohio would have benefited."

Governor Davey, the last speaker of the evening, expressed the "utmost respect for men who differ with my point of view," and said he always "respected the rights of the legislature."

"The legislators are fine as individuals," he asserted, "but together they can make more trouble for a governor."

WOMAN JAILED AS SHOPLIFTER

Fined $20 and Costs, Sentenced To 30 Days for Store Theft.

A second shoptlifter to be apprehended by police within the last two days pleaded guilty to a charge of petit larceny in municipal court today and was fined and sent to jail.

Mrs. Ethel Smith, North Main street, was assessed $20 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail when she pleaded guilty to the charge.

She was arrested yesterday at the W. T. Grant store where she was accused of stealing $5.70 in merchandise. The affidavit was signed by G. W. O'Connor, manager.

STRIKE DELAYS BURIALS OF 17

La Guardia Threatens to Have City Workers Dig Graves.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Seventeen bodies awaited burial today as Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia threatened to declare an emergency in a 4-day strike of 350 grave diggers and other employes of Greenwood cemetery in Brooklyn.

The unburied dead were placed in temporary reserve vaults as relatives and friends pressed for a settlement of the strike, called Saturday to avert seasonal layoffs of the cemetery's staff.

Mayor La Guardia said that unless the strike were arbitrated immediately he would provide city employes to dig the graves.

Ropp suffered a jaw fracture and deep cuts and lacerations about the head and Thomas received severe cuts on the face and an injured leg.

JOIN IN STATE RELIEF PARLEY

Representatives of Auditor's Office In Columbus For Meeting of Auditors.

Three representatives of the Richland county auditor's office were in Columbus today for a meeting of the state auditors at which the relief problem is expected to come to the front.

The meeting coincides with the special session of the state legislature which was called to enact relief legislation, and follows a conference last week of the county commissioners who opposed Gov. Martin L. Davey's 50-50 matching plan for raising $16,000,000 for state relief purposes.

Attending the meeting from Richland county are Deputy Auditors Arthur S. Beck and John Dalton and Harry Koch, county sealer of weights and measures. They will remain in Columbus for the three-day session of the auditors and sealers, ending Thursday night.

Confined to his home due to illness, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe was unable to attend.

miles of Nanking. A Japanese army spokesman asserted that the famous Kiangyin forts, a few miles above Kiangyin proper, fell later yesterday. There was little Chinese resistance, he said.

The Japanese column operating in the vicinity of Kwangteh, about 80 miles southeast of Nanking, was believed to be moving directly west toward the Yangtse to cut off the capital from Hankow, where foreign ambassadors and many divisions of the Chinese government are now located. Kwangteh was said to have fallen to Japanese forces moving west from the south end of Lake Tai.

United States embassy attaches in Nanking were greatly concerned by the refusal of 32 American missionaries, newspapermen and news reel men to leave the all but abandoned capital. Embassy secretaries vainly urged them to board the gunboat Panay of the Yangtse river patrol, lying off the city ready to sail for Hankow.

The Dough Is Rolled and Moulded Into Loaves of Bread
Bread in its infancy, in the form of dough, must pass through several stages of preparation before it is ready to be put into the ovens for baking. Bread dough in the form of raw chunks must weigh an exact number of ounces before it is placed in the oven. Dough in the "chunk form" is then carried by an endless belt and automatically fed into the moulding machine you see pictured here.
This new modern automatic dough moulder rolls and kneads the dough and shapes into the right proportions this dough in preparation to panning. This machine makes it possible for you to buy Nickles bread that is uniform in size and shape... it imparts fine texture and flavor through the right amount of moulding.

Oversea Flying to Stimulate Merchant Marine, Expert on Transportation Says.

NEW YORK—(UP)—The United States faces another important evolution in its foreign trade and merchant marine with the development of giant flying boats, believes W. H. Coverdale, international authority on transportation.

"We are in a transitional period where the merchant marine, to keep pace with the type of service demanded by the traveler, shipper and mail user, must take advantage of the added speed made available by boats with wings," Coverdale said.

He explained that the ocean vessel was in no danger of being replaced, but that a well-rounded transportation service would coordinate planes and ships, which would be improved and made more economical to use.

Overseas flying, in Coverdale's opinion, would become a definite stimulus to the merchant marine, and if it is built on a solid foundation, holds forth tremendous possibilities for travel and trade expansion throughout the world.

When asked to describe a basis on which a flying service across the Atlantic can be most economically built, Coverdale pointed to the existing steamship services operating under the American flag to virtually all the countries in Europe.

"We have today in our merchant marine," he said, "the most logical foundation on which to build flying services across the Atlantic, and supplementary services operating in conjunction with American flag steamships plying between European ports.

Diet? No Rules for It; Work? Lots Of That for Dancers in Ballet Russe

Ballerina Says Troupe Follows Own Rules for Keeping Fit.

By FRANCES GENSLEY

"Diet? No, not any more," said Miss Alexandra Danilova as she paused for a brief ten minutes between numbers of the Ballet Russe last night at Senior high school. "When I was young, I liked chocolate and ice cream too well, and I was fat," she indicated with an expressive movement of her hands along her hips. But diet or not, she isn't fat now—she's five feet tall, weighs 118 pounds.

Miss Danilova, who is a native Russian, took her training in her native land and appeared with the Russian Ballet there. Later she was in musical comedy and then received an offer from the Ballet Russe which she accepted. She has been with this company for five years.

"Cats! I don' like 'em," she announced vehemently when asked about her pet dislikes. Cats were the only things she could think of that really aroused her ire. She poised on her pink slippered toes and brushed the brocade of her shimmery blue and white satin ballet costume as she chatted volubly, but with an r-rolling accent.

Asked about the performances of the Ballet in nations on the continent she said, "Art is international and we are not interested in Communism or Fascism, but in making people happy. In Germany they are so sad. We try to make people laugh. You un'erstan'? you know what I mean?" she questioned, suddenly, turning interrogator.

The casual back-stage observer soon learns that members of the Ballet Russe practice constantly. By twos and threes, as they march off the stage, they go into routines, show each other steps, criticize, chatter, correct, try again, until once more they must return to the stage. "I 'ave been practicing all evening in the hall and in there (with a quick gesture toward the gymnasium) where they play with the basketball."

* * *

The exigencies of travel make it nearly impossible for the crew to be held to either strict diets or close exercise and practice routines. Rehearsals are called whenever the company is in one town long enough. When new numbers must be prepared, a few weeks are taken in New York, Chicago, or London, and everyone works feverishly to perfect the routines. Then on they go. As to eating, Miss Danilova revealed that there are no company regulations about food. However everyone realizes that his or her job depends on fitness. It is the necessity of always being physically in the best of health that makes the members of the company cling closely to their own personal codes for maintaining health and energy.

* * *

"People in the arts and the navy—they are all—you know what I mean—what you call it?"

Helpfully we interjected "superstitious."

"Yes, yes, that's it. So much in the arts depends on luck. Dancers know that. The floor is just a little slippery, there is a tiny leaf maybe, and one slips and"—she trailed off.

"So much depends on the mood of the audience. Maybe they don' like your head dress or your nose so they don' like your dance. Everything in this profession depends on luck. When I was dancing in Paris a famous ballet master picked up a little green feather on the stage and gave it to me saying, 'Keep it, if you ever lose it, you will lose your success.' Since then I have always that feather with me. I carry it every place all over America and the continent. So it is with the navy. Their luck depends on the weather and on the sea. We are both the most superstitious people," she concluded a bit breathlessly after a struggle with the word 'superstitious.'

* * *

Questioned about other towns she had played in she immediately remembered one and said, "You know the chocolate town, the one with Cocoa boulevard, and Whipped Cream drive, you know . . .?"

Trying once again to extricate the tiny dancer from a battle with English words we suggested "Hershey," where chocolate is made.

"Oh, you know," she exclaimed. "It is such a beautiful little town, it is like out of a musical comedy, like a fairy tale. It is so pretty and the names of those streets." In spite of all her dietary discipline Miss Danilova still seems to be very fond of chocolate!

* * *

There are about 100 in the Ballet Russe troupe, recruited from the stage and the dancing academies of almost every nation. There are English, Americans, one Cuban, Russians, Polish, Czechoslavakians.

Miss Danilova said many ballerinas start dancing as small girls—perhaps at the age of eight. With dancing, as with any other profession, it is a matter of working hard and long hours to acquire the techniques, but in addition the dancer must seek constantly to perfect and improve her talent so that she is always ready to create any role in which she is cast. Since the days of the Russian Imperial Ballet the training has changed much. Girls are not selected specifically for dancing careers, but rather they choose to dance just as somebody else decides to be a baker or a seamstress.

So it is with the company of the Ballet Russe behind the scenes. One perches precariously on a trunk while the electrician swears heartily about a light blowing out. Somewhere in the hall a violinist produces unearthly sounds which are overlayed by the animated chatter of two male dancers and a friend. Lacking the traditional back-stage "no smoking" sign a group of musicians sit on packing cases and talk in a foreign tongue as they puff at cigarets.

Somewhere an axious voice asks if there is any mail, and another voice is raised in disparagement of everything in general. Gaudy costumes, heavy and grotesque make-up, a hammering property man, everyone about at once and the whole staff seeming to be under foot and yet bent on some heavy business. Before the final curtain husky men are carrying off trunks and boxes of equipment and clothing. It's over. They're off to Grand Rapids!

Blames Murder on Duel, Pact to Kill Loser's Family

FARMER HELD AFTER TWO DIE IN GUNFIRE

'It Was My Family or His,' Slayer Suspect Tells Montana Authorities.

BILLINGS, Mont.—(U.P.)—Frank Robideau pleaded today that Mike Kuntz took him out on a country road for a duel to the death over a load of wheat, that Kunts brought his wife and child along because the winner was to exterminate the other's family, and that was why he had to kill him.

He said he didn't kill Mrs. Kuntz, but that when her husband fell she seized a gun and shot herself. Then the child, who is only six years old, attacked Robideau to evenge his dying parents, and the killer had to smite him down.

"Kuntz said it was my family or his," the 55-year-old farmer said. "I didn't want to kill them."

Charged With Murder.

The child lived to accuse Robideau, who was charged with murder today.

Yellowstone county authorities were not entirely convinced by Robideau's story. If Kuntz had a gun it had not been found.

Kuntz operated a grain elevator at Wheat Basin. The body of Kuntz and his wife were found Saturday in the Kuntz automobile, which was parked inside the elevator.

"Kuntz was a crooked dealer," Robideau said. "He bought wheat from me under different names so I wouldn't have money to pay on my mortgage. He bought lots from me under the name of George Phillips. He said he got into trouble and wouldn't do it again.

"I reminded him that I had 180 bushels in his elevator and either he should give me it back or pay me for it.

"He wouldn't do it. He pulled an automotic on me and said that he would kill my family before he would do it. I thought either he was crazy or he meant business. I went home and got my revolver and about 6:30 that evening (Friday) he came along with the wife and kid in the car.

"I went out and said 'Kuntz, you don't mean that, do you?'

"He says 'every bit, get in here and I'll take you where we can have it out.'

Wife Makes Plea.

"His wife begged him to pay me for my wheat or give it back so I could sell it to some other dealer. I had to have money.

"She told me 'Rodibeau, if you kill him I want to go too.'

"I got in the car and he drove until we got out a ways on the road. Then he stopped and said 'shoot.'

"I thought he was going to shoot me through the front seat cushion, so I put the gun to his head and shot him. His wife grabbed the gun and pointed it at her stomach, and it went off. She really shot herself."

37,000 Seals In Mail-Drive Goes Into High Gear

Some $7,000 Christmas seals—the tiny stamps that help fight tuberculosis—went in the mail in Mansfield and Richland county yesterday, as the seal campaign went into high gear.

City Chairman George H. Smith, pointing to first day returns, expressed optimism for the success of the campaign.

Even before the seals had gone out, he said, the first purchase was made. No. 1 Seal Buyer was Berick Meyer, of the Mansfield Fish company. Meyer went to seal headquarters, 76 East Fourth street, at 8:30 a. m. yesterday, laid down the cash and walked away with seals, 200 of them. "I'm for Christmas seals 100 per cent," he said.

A large downtown store also called seal headquarters yesterday and told Smith, "Our seal check is ready. Come and get it."

Boy Scouts Saturday will place 600 seal posters in conspicuous places throughout the city.

Proceeds of the seal sale this year will be used to defray the cost of tuberculosis clinics. A goal of $3,700 has been set for the campaign which closes Dec. 24.

Up and Down THE STREET

Civic Music association members got a giggle or two out of preparations for the Ballet Russe at the high school last night as the company's electrician sought to operate the lights in the auditorium, from a switchboard with which he was not familiar. He had to stick his hatted head out of the curtain a half dozen times to see whether the lights he wanted out were actually out. And then the lights in the orchestra pit went out, and he had to come down from the wings and fix 'em. Reports have it that the bass viol player moved his instrument and broke a connection.

Recent visitors to the hunting regions of this vicinity included Joe Vosmik of the St. Louis Browns and Mel Harder of the Cleveland Indians. They sought their game on the other side of Crestline and they got their share, too. However, their bag was not quite as large as it was at Pelee Island, where Harder and Vosmik brought down something like 100 pheasants on an extended hunting excursion.

Called to the northern part of the county Sunday on a complaint that someone was hunting, contrary to law, Game Warden C. I. Kimmel stumbled on a scene that might have happened in pioneer days. He found two small boys, bare-footed but wearing coonskin caps, in an old log cabin. Armed with a muzzle-loading gun, the youngsters had named themselves Daniel Boone and Kit Carson, and were firing at targets through holes in the cabin wall. Every time they fired, they let out a lusty yell, "And another redskin bites the dust!" They told Kimmel they'd spent the night in the cabin.

Rolling a perfect score is one thing, but obtaining the official award presented for such unusual feats is another. Clarence Meder, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Meder, who became the first Mansfielder ever to roll a 300 game in league competition, will receive a gold medal from the American Bowling Congress for the stunt; that is, after he fills out a questionnaire of about 100 questions, uses a level and a yardstick to make sure that the alleys were perfect, gets signatures of everybody from the pin boys to the league officers and then has the document notarized. Rolling the perfect game was easier, Meder contends.

BUS DRIVERS GET ULTIMATUM

Greyhound Officials Set Noon Wednesday For Them to Return or Lose Jobs.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Remaining firm in their stand against a closed shop contract with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Greyhound bus line officials fixed noon Wednesday as the deadline for striking bus drivers to return to work or "be considered as having resigned from the service."

The notice received by employes of the nine affected Greyhound lines operating in 16 states, was accompanied by a copy of the contract which the company has offered the Brotherhood, bargaining agency for the strikers.

"The company has not included in the contract the provision that drivers must join the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in order to work for the company," the statement said. "It feels that all employes should be free to determine for themselves the question as to joining or not joining a labor union."

Meanwhile comparative quiet prevailed over the extensive strike area as John L. Conners, federal labor conciliator, resumed his peace efforts between company and union officials.

A Washington-bound bus was reported stoned from a passing automobile. At Pittsburgh, 18 men held for investigation were released when Wilbur Glassbrenner, a non-striking driver, was unable to identify any of them as those who had seized and held him for a time Sunday.

WHIRLING AND COLORFUL BALLET GIVES CITY TASTE OF CLASSICS

By JANE WILLIAMS

Classical entertainment from Continental Europe came to Mansfield for a brief hour and a half last night to enthrall an audience of 800 with its flash of brilliant and bizarre colors, its whirling ballet dancers and sweeping symphony music.

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, which has moved across the stages of the world, delighting emperors and peasants alike, cramped itself onto the small stage of the Senior high school auditorium last night as the Mansfield Civic Music association presented the ballet as the first number of a series of three for this season.

Although handicapped by a stage that was far smaller than those on which it is accustomed to working, and by the lack of proper lighting effects, the colorful Ballet Russe proved an outstanding presentation in Mansfield's history of entertainment. Applause was generous and resounding and many times became an ovation as the audience recalled the dancers for repeated bows and curtains.

* * *

Music, which is so important a part of the ballet, was provided by a symphony orchestra under the direction of Conductor Antal Dorati. In "Aurora's Wedding," the second of the three ballets, Tschaikowsky's music was so stirringly and beautifully played that at times it overshadowed the whirling figures on the stage.

"Aurora's Wedding" was the most interesting of the three ballets, for it combined romance, folk lore and gay ensembles. At the marriage feast of the sleeping beauty, Aurora herself comes to dance with the Prince, and there are Little Red Riding Hood and the big bad Wolf, the Blue Bird of Happiness and other fairy tale celebrities.

The outstanding number in this ballet was the Blue Bird dance by David Lichine and Tatiana Riabouchinska. Lichine, one of the great contemporary dancers, is noted for his long and high leaps. Riabouchinska, blond, beautiful and graceful, was a lovely mate for the Blue Bird. They were called back again and again last night after they had left the stage.

The Three Ivans were seen in a Cossack dance so swift and intricate that it was over almost before the audience recovered its breath sufficiently to give them a rousing hand. The dance of the Porcelain Princesses was gay and colorful, with the dancers dressed as Chinese porcelain figures.

* * *

The opening ballet, "Cimarosiana" reflected the age of classical Italian music, drama and dance. Of eight movements in this ballet, the Pas de Trois with Olga Morosova, Roman Jasinsky and Paul Petroff, was the most appealing to the eye, although the Pas de Deux by Riabouchinska and Alexis Kosloff was swift, graceful and executed with skill.

The final ballet "Prince Igor," with much of its music from the opera of the same name, was arranged by Michael Fokine. In spite of its colors—brown, gold, [illegible] copper tints—it lacked the gaiety of the other two numbers. Here, more than in any of the other dances, the audience felt the lack of adequate stage space, with 40 dancers on the stage at one time.

Solo dancers in this were Tamara Grigorieva as a Persian slave; Vera Nelidove as the Polovtsien girl, and Yurek Shabelevsky as the warrior. An interesting fact about the "Prince Igor" ballet was that the dances arranged by Fokine were under his personal direction.

The entire company worked under something of a handicap last night. It arrived in Mansfield late in the afternoon and found that most of its scenery and costumes could not be unloaded, for lack of space.

More than 800 persons saw the performance last night, according to W. L. Miller, president of the Civic Music association. Some of them came from other towns and cities on their membership cards. Miller said that holders of membership cards in the Mansfield association may use them in any other city where Civic Music programs are given. Admission is by membership only.

In last night's audience were members from Canton, Wooster, Akron, Ashland, Shelby and Galion.

Miller pointed out that the other two numbers on the program as Luboslutz and Neurenoff, in a duo piano concert, Jan. 20; and Douglas Beattie, American baritone, on March 7. Special attractions on the Canton course which will take a number of Mansfielders to that city are Rabinoff, violinist, Dec. 3, and Marian Anderson, sensational colored contralto, on Jan. 12.

DUFFY TO CALL SPECIAL GRAND JURY IN CANTON

Clevelander Serving Term For Embezzlement Approached For Parole, Claim.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A special Stark county grand jury will be convened at Canton next Tuesday and C. Stirling Smith, former Cleveland banker sentenced to Ohio penitentiary, will be called before the grand jury as part of the current investigation of the state parole system, Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy said today.

The Stark jury will supplement work of the Franklin county body, by inquiring into activities of Arch W. Naylor, who is held on open charges at Zanesville and who refused to waive immunity and testify here, Duffy said.

The attorney general added that the Franklin jury would remain in session during deliberations of the Stark county body which will be recessed after a week.

Communicates With Judge.

He exhibited a letter he had written Judge J. L. Floyd at Canton in asking for the special jury and said Eugene Carlin, assistant attorney general, would be sent there to supervise activities.

Duffy said that he had questioned Naylor, friend of former parole board Chairman Leland S. Dougan, several times in connection with published reports that "brokers' accepted fees to aid convicts in obtaining freedom

Announcement that Smith would be called for testimony was made after the jury had questioned Sherman Chrysler, a former Franklin county constable, who reportedly approached Smith regarding a parole.

Chrysler testified for half an hour yesterday and was escorted by officers to his home to obtain some records, the nature of which was not disclosed.

The attorney general said he did not know when he would call Smith, who entered the penitentiary in 1934 to serve one to 30 years for embezzlement and misapplication of funds. The former banker has been in the prison hospital for about a month, suffering with a kidney ailment, Warden J. C. Woodard said.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

In the last two weeks a great deal has been said about what Mr. Roosevelt has done and is planning to do to meet the grave situation created by the "business recession." Under the circumstances it would be called a depression but the president's friends have a natural distaste for that word, because in the last campaign such things were associated exclusively with his predecessor. The main thesis was that the wise and beneficient New Deal policies had dispelled the depression and produced prosperity.

The acute embarrassment after four years of unlimited power, unlimited money and unstinted public confidence, of finding on their hands a genuine depression which cannot be attributed to the "economic royalists," to the Republicans or to his critics induces administration spokesmen to employ the milder phrase. But names do not alter facts. The effects of the "recession" are so obvious and the country so clearly scared that the "master of mass psychology" in the White House, which, in a particularly expansive mood, Mr. Roosevelt once modestly told a couple of Democratic senators he was, felt impelled to "action."

HENCE, almost daily since Nov. 15, inspired by news from the White House, correspondents and commentators have spread the cheering information of the presidential activity. The dispatches and headlines have been couched in such vigorous words as "the president today moved strongly" or "the president today disclosed plans" or "the president reassures utility executives" or "the president extends olive branch" or "the president takes steps to restore confidence" or "the president confers with business leaders." Hundreds of columns have been printed describing the strategy of the president in meeting the conditions. Many commendatory editorials have been written on the theory that Mr. Roosevelt intended now to sidetrack reform for recovery; that he was working night and day to prevent the recession from becoming greater and was anxious to relieve business of its more crippling handicaps and burdens.

AS HE HAS NOW gone off on a ten-day fishing trip, accompanied by those experienced business men and conservative advisers, Mr. Harry Hopkins, Mr Harold Ickes and Mr. James Roosevelt, it is interesting to examine what he actually did to justify those exhilarating headlines and dispatches.

It is true he has let it be known that he favors a modification of the "unjust" taxes on business, but he, personally, moved to prevent the spontaneous movement in congress to repeal the undivided profits tax, which it is agreed is the most vicious and harmful of all.

It is true he held conferences with several public utility magnates who came out of the White House expressing a determination to co-operate and a hope that the end of government hostility had arrived. But, as the Herald Tribune points out, on the very day of his first utility conference, the president aided the New York State Power authority in obtaining a national audience for the charge that private utilities were trying to sabotage the government's power program and that federal hydro-electricity could be generated at less than half the cost of private development at steam plants.

It is true that at his White House press conference he conveyed the idea that the emphasis was to be upon recovery. Yet he insists to the leaders in congress upon the enactment of a new and highly experimental crop control bill sure to put up the price of food, a wage and hour bill, certain to increase commodity prices, and both of which are bound to enhance the size and cost of government and the insecurity of business. It is true he urges economy upon congress and writes to "dear Alben" asking that the expense of the new farm measure be kept to $500,000,000. But he—and everyone else—knows it will not be kept to that figure, and he carefully refrains from saying that he will veto it if it is exceeded. It is true he continues to talk about balancing the budget, but he also continues to ignore the fact that the deficit for the current year steadily rises above the finally revised official estimate and will be more than $1,000,000,000 by next July.

WHEN THESE FACTS—and they are facts—are considered, it is difficult to sustain belief that since his public recognition of the "business recession" Mr. Roosevelt has really done anything about it. The record shows that his gestures in one direction have been consistently offset by acts of omission or commission in the other. What seems to be the truth is that Mr. Roosevelt, [illegible] by the political aspects of the situation, has put on a show at the White House, but not really done anything. Certainly he has done none of the immediate things which business wanted and congress would like to do. On the contrary, he stands in the way of congressional action for tax relief, insists upon his reform program and goes off fishing, leaving behind a sonorous housing message, sound enough in its way, but from which no real effect possibly can be had within a year.

When those "the president moves strongly" headlines are put aside and the realities faced, the conclusion is unescapable that, so far, the president's efforts to "help business recover" have lacked sincerity and force; that there is a deeper desire to give business what it needs in congress than in the White House. That, however, doesn't help business very much at the moment because if there is effective leadership in congress it is hidden. There are good men there, anxious to return to sanity, but there appears to be no individual and no group capable of formulating a constructive program and putting it through. That can only be done if the president points the way. Maybe he will after he comes back from Florida. There is always hope.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—They've been working a year out at Warner Bros. studios investigating the historical surroundings of a man whose existence has never been approved.

Dr. Herman Lissauer, his assistant, Mrs. Hetta George, and their staff of seven research workers were not greatly concerned about the authenticity of the Robin Hood legend. But Robin Hood, if he lived at all, lived in a definite historical period—about 1190 A. D.—in a definite setting, the England of Richard Couer de Lion and of the Norman usurper, wicked Prince John.

The research department's work began when the first script was completed. Tactfully but firmly, the Lissauer-George forces read that script, made notes, checked, and returned the script to its authors.

* * *

The polite notes conveyed many succinct reminders and corrections, such as the fact that Prince John was never actually regent, that shillings were not in use until much later than Robin Hood's time, the popular coins being "pennies," and that guineas were unheard of. Also, it was suggested, the English did not become tea-drinkers until about 1650 and no character should use "Ouch!" as an exclamation of pain because the expression had no place until the 19th century. If anyone were hurt and wanted to say "Ouch!" he must content himself with a hearty "Aie-aie-ee!" And about Olivia (Maid Marian) De Havilland's "boudoir"—girls didn't have boudoirs in those days. They had rooms, and none too frilly, either. And so on, and so on, to the last page of the script.

The research department then turned to constructive labors. For the art department it dug deep into hundreds of old tomes, consulted old prints showing medieval castles, apartments, streets and dwellings. For the costumers it excavated authentic notes on what milady wore to an archery tournament, to court, to market, to sleep, and the equivalents for milord. On games and customs Mrs George spent Sundays reading at least 30 sources, tracing Saxon pleasures and Norman fads, and listing the whole for Director William Keighley's guidance. (Keighley did plenty of reading himself.)

Youthfulness Kept By Attitude

By VIRGINIA LEE

I mentioned before in this column that I am reading Gelett Burgess' new book, "Look Eleven Years Younger." He calls to our attention that nervous habits, grimaces, foot tappings, mouthings, pencil and bead biting, etc., that we indulge in are all definitely aging, and that we should control them. He recommends "conscious control," or keeping our minds upon what we are doing, as a remedy for these senile habits.

His conclusion, at the close of his book, is one of my pet theories, so you will pardon me if I quote it:

"After all is said, the most important characteristic of youth is growth. When you stop growing you begin to grow old. Of course no one wants to keep on growing physically, but we do want to keep on growing mentally. If we don't, the world passes us by. It is only by continual mental development that age can ever hope to compete with youth."

I have never sympathized with the "tired business man" (or woman) attitude, you know. There are times, I admit, when body, mind and soul need nothing so much as rest. But I believe in "resting" when one is in normal health of mind and body, by "good" entertainment, good music, good plays, fine books, thoughtful and intelligent conversation.

I never can see why folk need to leave their brains at home when they play. It seems to me infinitely more refreshing to exercise them in a different field than in that to which our work calls us, but to use them nevertheless.

But don't think I don't like fun, too. I can be as silly as the next one with just pure fun, but I don't want to be silly all the time. I want entertainment with a punch to it—and I don't mean a beverage that intoxicates.

The youngest person I ever knew was a woman who lived to be nearly 90. She was right on her toes. She knew all that was going on, read the new books, listened to the radio, played a good game of cards, and since reading Gelett Burgess' book in which he says that talking about ages makes us seem older, I suddenly realized how seldom she mentioned age. It therefore made a great and very sweet impression on me when one day she said, after we had heard a certain song sung: "I sang that once before an audience when I was 18, and wore a pink dress." It conjured up a most alluring vision of a pretty young girl in a pink dress singing that song.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

LEADING TO A TENACE

There are times when it is absolutely correct to lead up to an A-Q in the dummy. This is so if you can read that the declarer has a singleton of the suit in his hand, and therefore there is only one entry to bring in the dummy's suit, which is not yet safely established. The doubt of its establishment can be because there is one honor out against it or because you or your partner may happen to hold a hostile trump.

North and South reached a contract of 6-Clubs on this deal. South started with 1-Club, North bid 1-Spade, South 2-Clubs, North 2-Hearts, South 3-Diamonds, North 3-Hearts, South 5-Clubs and North 6-Clubs.

Against this bidding, West elected to lead the heart 9, which the declarer covered with dummy's 10 and which East allowed to ride. The club 3 was now finessed and the club A cashed, showing that East held the remaining trumps. Declarer cashed the heart A and then put East in with the club K, figuring that he could draw all the outstanding trumps and use the remaining hearts in dummy, provided the suit broke, to discard his diamonds.

However, East had read South's holdings perfectly from the bidding and knew South held six clubs, four diamonds, and possibly only one spade. He therefore returned a small spade up to dummy's tenace, in the hope of killing the heart suit. His play accomplished this and the contract was set.

—Beauty—

Milk Will Beautify Complexion

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

MILK REALLY is an excellent complexion beautifier. When taking internally in the proper quantities, it helps to clear the skin and to eradicate blotchiness and sallowness. But milk can be used externally also as a skin beautifier, according to Kitty Carlisle, stage and screen actress. Milk serves excellently as a snappy pick-me-up facial, but, Kitty adds, different types of skin require different sorts of milk if they are to be benefited.

According to Kitty, the ordinary sweet milk is for the individual who possesses a normal skin. For the oily-skinned type, he says, buttermilk is best. And for the dry-skinned lassie, rich, heavy cream is ideal, because it helps to provide nourishment for such skin and tends to give it the lubrication that it lacks.

Before using one of these facials, cleanse your skin thoroughly, first with soap and water, and then with a good cold cream. Then, after removing the cream with cleaning tissue, pat a quantity of the milk onto your skin with a square of absorbent cotton. If your skin is oily, use the buttermilk. If your skin is normal, use the ordinary sweet milk. And if your skin is inclined to dryness, use the rich, heavy cream.

Pat a copious amount of whichever form of milk you choose onto your skin, and permit it to dry. When dry, pat on a second layer. Let this also dry. When thoroughly dry, remove the milk mask with tepid water and a soft cloth, and as the final step, apply a mild astringent or skin tonic, in order to close the pores and tone up the skin. This method of utilizing milk has a bleaching and toning effect on the skin, helps to refine its texture, and leaves it feeling soft, and smooth and velvety.

Another good way to utilize milk as a complexion beautifier is to go on an exclusive milk diet. Physicians say that every individual should consume at least a pint of milk every day, because of the protective mineral elements that this beverage contains, and Kitty Carlisle is one lass who adheres to this idea. Kitty, however drinks milk not only for her health's sake, but for her beauty's sake as well. She takes her milk internally as well as using it externally, and her own lovely skin should be sufficient proof of the benefits that can accrue through the use of milk.

The milk diet for improving the complexion is one that a good many showgirls and chorines employ, and it really is most effective in clearing the skin of blotches and sallowness. In this milk diet, nothing should be consumed for three day but fresh milk. It is possible to prolong the diet for a greater length of time, of course, but I personally think that three days constitute a sufficiently lengthy period of time for the average individual. Most of the girls behind the footlights and under the Klieg lights do the dieting over the week-end, starting on Friday and culminating the diet on Monday. And that's an ideal way.

During this dieting period, no solid foods should be consumed, and as much milk as possible should be taken. The average amount is from four to six quarts every 24 hours.

An 18-inch geranium planted in a four-inch pot can produce from 20 to 25 flowers all at one time and keep them all winter, after the roots have filled the pot and are crowding. Geraniums should, therefore, be repotted when roots get crowded if plenty of blooms are desired.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

IF I HAD been afflicted with any qualms concerning my plan to sabotage Noel's car in order to give him a longer sojourn with us—and Mary—they would have been completely banished by the glowing gratitude in the faces of the young couple as we told them they could take one of our cars to the beach, and leave their own for Jim to take down and have serviced.

"Will you think us awful if we run away right after luncheon?" Mary asked. "You see, we have so very little time together."

"Of course not. Go immediately," Dicky and I told them together, but Mother Graham put in an unexpected and positive objection.

"It won't hurt you to wait 20 minutes or so," she said in her most dictatorial manner. "There are any number of things I want to ask you, Mary, and I don't want to risk delaying them until you come back."

Agrees Reluctantly.

"Sure, Granzie," Mary said with a sweet docility she always shows to her grandmother. Noel murmured a courteous assent, although I guessed that his soul was far from tranquil over the unexpected delay.

While Mother Graham is captious and sensitive, it is not in her to be selfish or unkind, and I wondered at her sudden dictum until I caught her eye, and saw her move her eyebrows elaborately toward the kitchen. It was a facial gesture unseen by Noel and Mary, and I knew that she wished to get an opportunity to speak with me alone as soon as possible. I looked around the table service to obtain some plausible excuse for leaving, and suddenly exclaimed:

"Mother, Katie hasn't brought you that special jam I bought for you! She probably hasn't found out yet where Mrs. Ticer has put it. If you'll excuse me, I'll get it."

"Do you know—I put that jam away myself. I just remembered. No, Richard, you will not call Katie. I don't want her messing around my private cupboard. I'll get it."

Sends Katie to Cellar.

I had left the table as she spoke and she also arose and followed me into the kitchen. Closing the door, I turned to Katie:

"Please hurry down to the preserve closet and get a jar of raspberry preserves. Mother Graham wants them."

Such is her awe of the "old womans," as she invariably calls her, that she did not wait even to answer, but rushed to the cellar door and down the steps while I turned to face my mother-in-law, who put her hands heavily upon my shoulders as if for support.

"I've only a second," she said, "but you musn't let Mary and Noel go off alone to the beach without someone close at hand watching over them. Remember Jack Leslie is free, somewhere. You can fix it up with Dicky, and I'll keep them talking to me until everything's ready."

"So that's the reason," I began.

"I'm glad you think I had a good one," she snapped, aware of my thought. Then she went to a special cupboard kept for her use exclusively, took from it a jar of preserves, and turned back to the dining room just as Katie came panting up the stairs, a jar of preserves in her hands.

"Sorry to have troubled you for nothing, Katie," I apologized, "but Mother Graham has taken a jar of her special preserves."

"Dey no better dan dese," Katie said gruffly.

Signals Dicky.

"But she thinks they are," I told her, smiling, "so don't bother any more about them. And I want to thank you for a very delicious luncheon quickly prepared for our travelers."

"Dot nuddings," Katie replied, and I went back to the dining room, giving Dicky one of our private signals which told him that I must see him alone at the first opportunity.

"We'd better give the once-over to the cars, Madge," he said easily, after an interval long enough to preclude suspicion, "and see which one is the better equipped for this 'sentimental journey' of the youngsters. Mother, we'll leave you to your questions, but don't make them too long. We want to give the kids all the time together we can."

He put his hand easily beneath my arm, and went unhurriedly out of the room with me. But with the door once closed, he confronted me with a gibing smile.

"What's on the well-known mind?" he queried.

THEATER

NOTES on the cuff — Glenda Farrell and Drew Eberson are twoing the night spots. . . . Everett Crosby denies he guaranteed Golf-Wizard John Montague a million dollars, or even has him under contract. . . . The reopened Clover club is Hollywood's hottest late spots. . . . Among the twosomes who frequent the night club are Lillian Pertka (she's the girl who took Ethel Merman's part in the road show of "Anything Goes") and Henry Wilcoxon. . . . Jeanne Howard and Charles Feldman. . . . And Ilona Massie and Vic Orsatti (Miss Howard is one of the M. G. M.'s recent Viennese importations) . . . Out of 10,000 fan letters received recently by Ginger Rogers, 3,600 were from approving parents.

"Madame X."

"Madame X," one of the celebrated dramas of the stage, will be the screen attraction opening at the Madison theater Wednesday. Gladys George, star of "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," heads the cast which includes Warren William, John Beal, Philip Reed and Lynne Carver. The film revolves about the turbulent career of a young and beautiful French girl who, forced to flee from her husband and son because of being falsely accused of murder, gradually descends the scale of life until she becomes a poverty-stricken waterfront character. She returns to France, becomes involved in another murder and her own son is appointed by the court to defend her. "Ebb Tide," with Oscar Homolka, Frances Farmer and Ray Milland, is the film fare through today.

Burns and Allen at Ohio.

George Burns and Gracie Allen, screen and radio favorites, are co-starred with Fred Astaire in the musical romance, "A Damsel in Distress," at the Ohio theater. Astaire has the role of an American dancer in London, and Burns is his hard-working press-agent, with Miss Allen as his secretary. Between them, the two funsters manage to play havoc with the romance of Astaire and Joan Fontaine, who has the title role of an English girl in matrimonal difficulties. Ray Noble, Reginald Gardiner, Constance Collier and Montagu Love support the stars. The show plays through Wednesday.

"The Locked Door."

The film in which Barbara Stanwyck made her film debut is one of the current attractions opening at the Majestic theater today. The picture, "The Locked Door," starring Miss Stanwyck and Rod La Rocque tells the story of the heartaches and tragedies resulting from withholding some innocent happenings of the past. The second feature on the program is "Expensive Husbands," co-starring Beverly Roberts and Patric Knowles. Miss Roberts plays the actress whose star is on the wane, and who sets out to get publicity in a big way.

John Boles at Ritz.

John Boles heads the cast of "As Good As Married," opening at the Ritz theater today. Boles is cast in the role of a successful architect, harrassed by gold-digging women and income tax collectors, who marries his secretary to keep the tax collectors from getting almost his entire income. Everything goes well until Boles becomes jealous of his wife's escorts. Doris Nolan portrays the wife, with Tala Birell, Walter Pidgeon and Alan Mowbray also in the cast. Kenny Baker in "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air," with Frank McHugh and Jane Wyman is the No. 2 feature.
